READING DIRECTIONS

This book reads from right to left, Japanese style. If this is your first time reading manga, you start reading from the top right panel on each page and take it from there. If you get lost, just follow the numbered diagram here. It may seem backwards at first, but you'll get the hang of it! Have fun!!

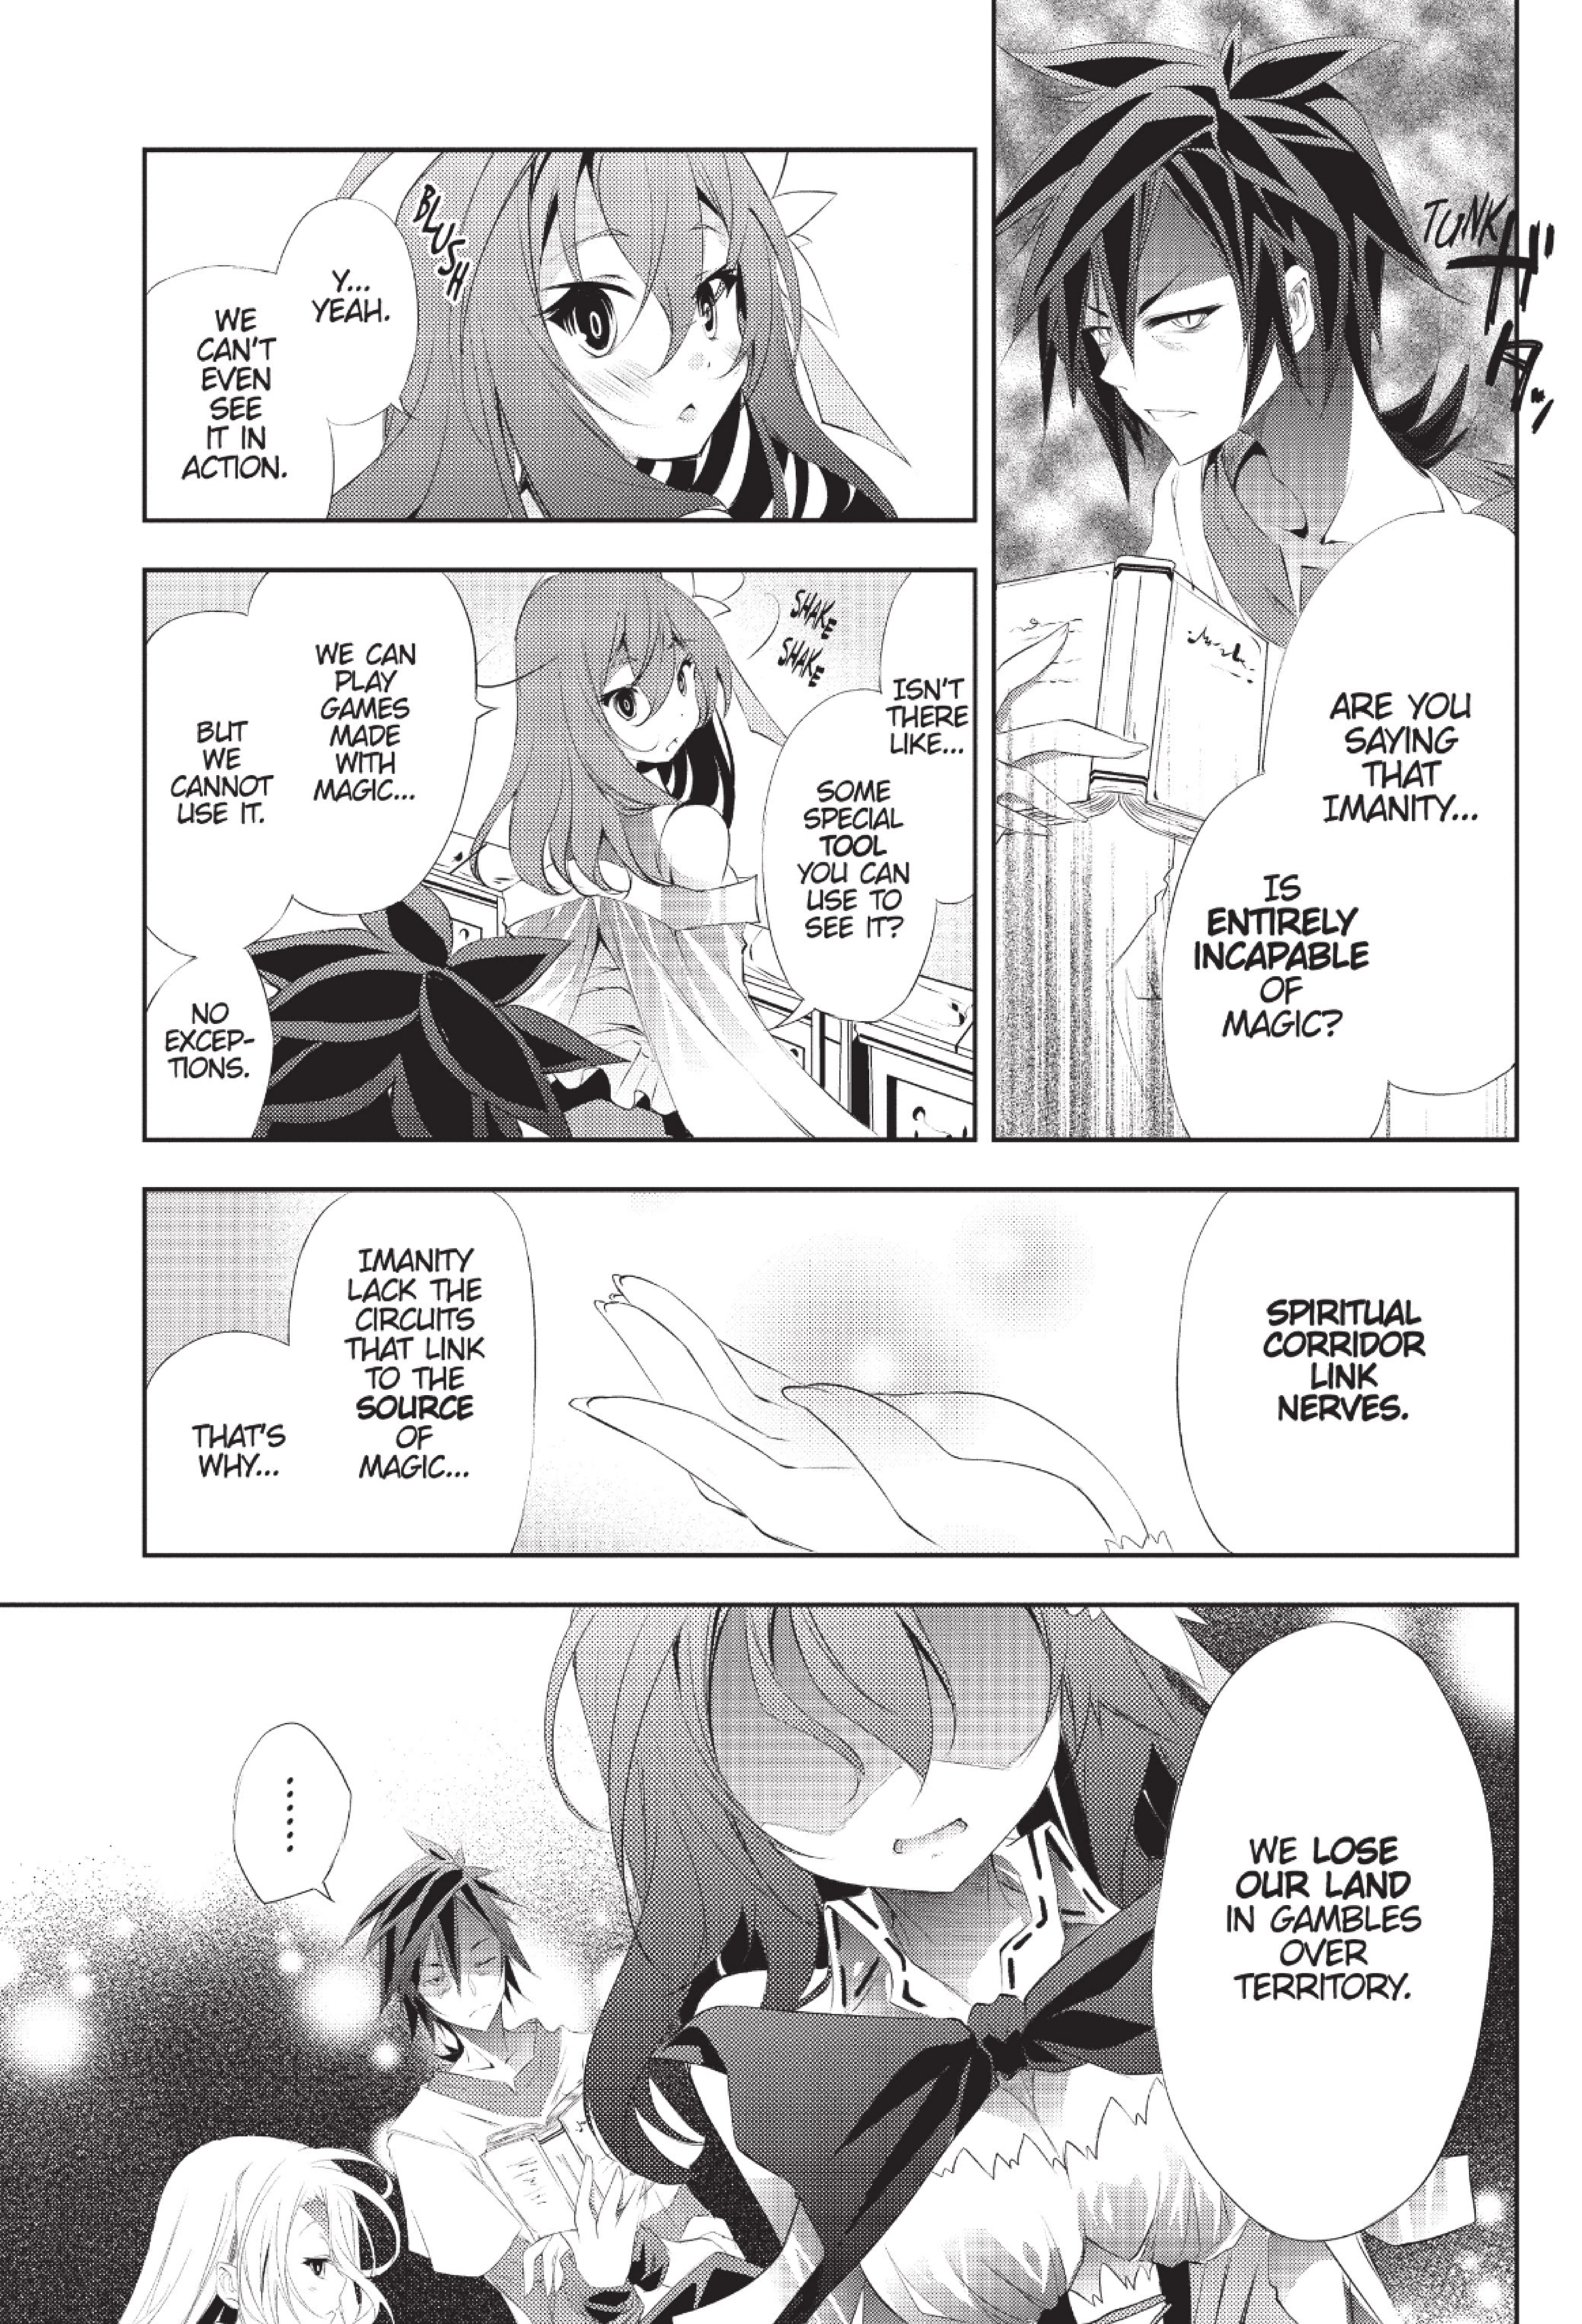
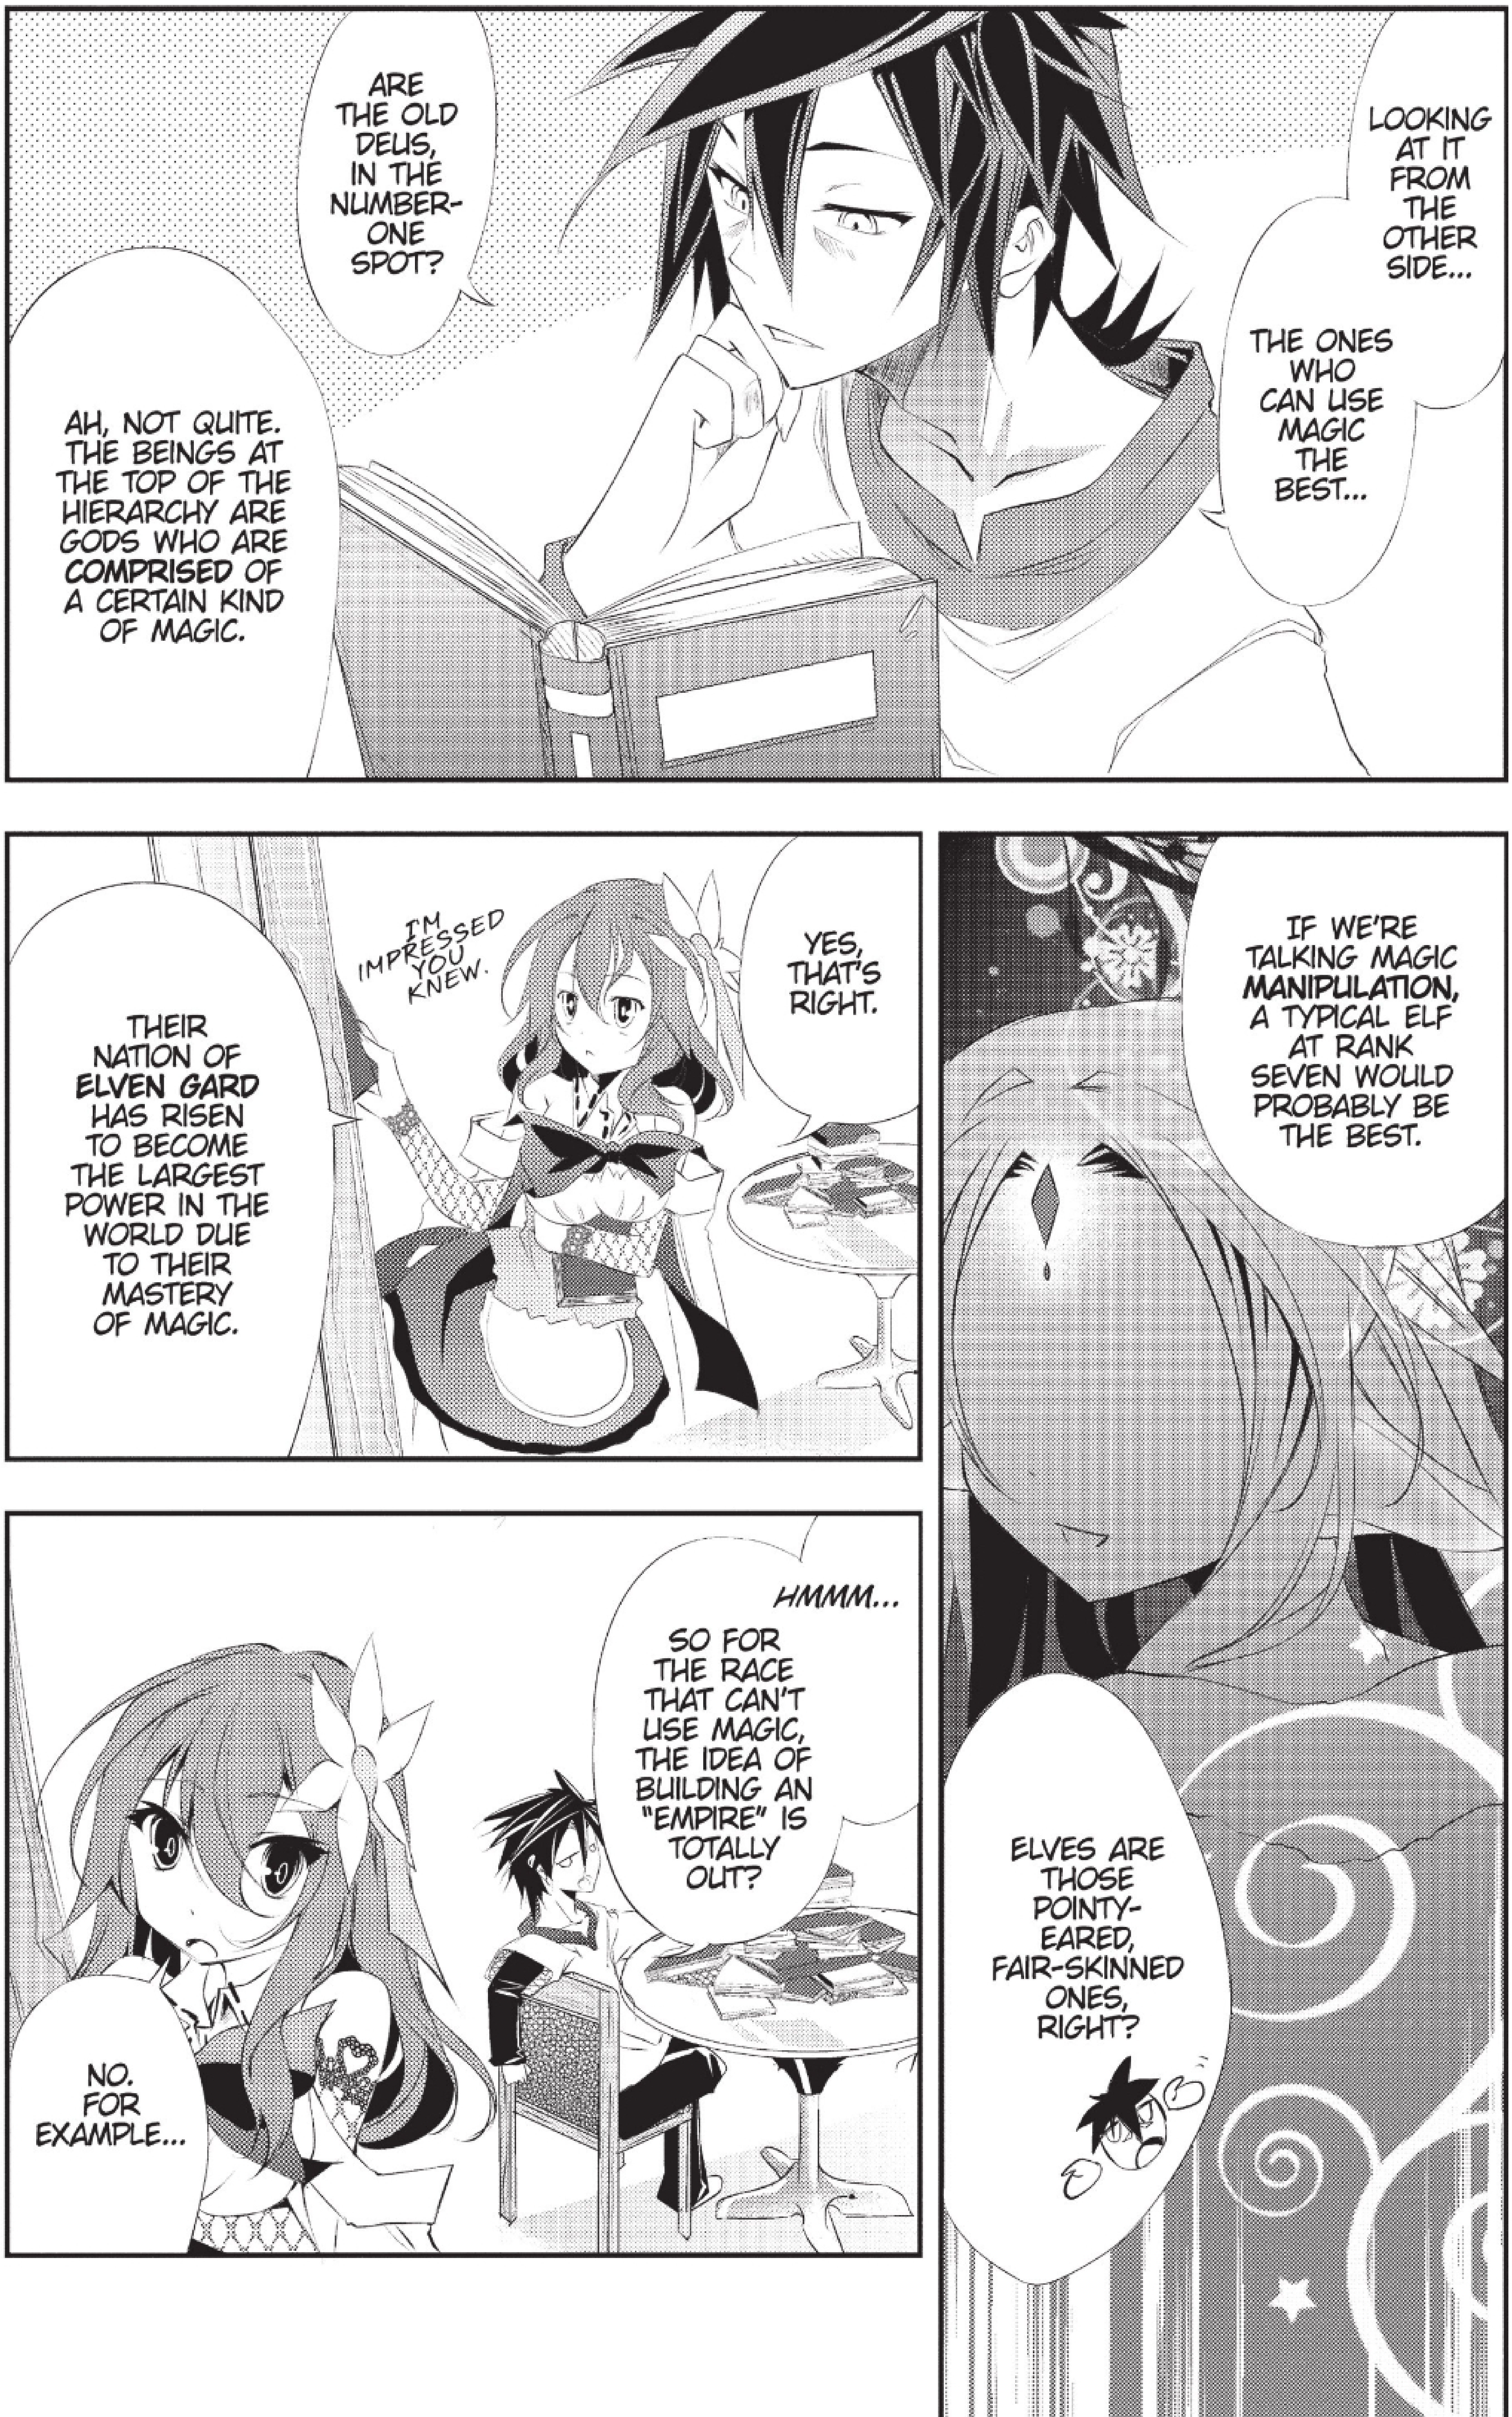
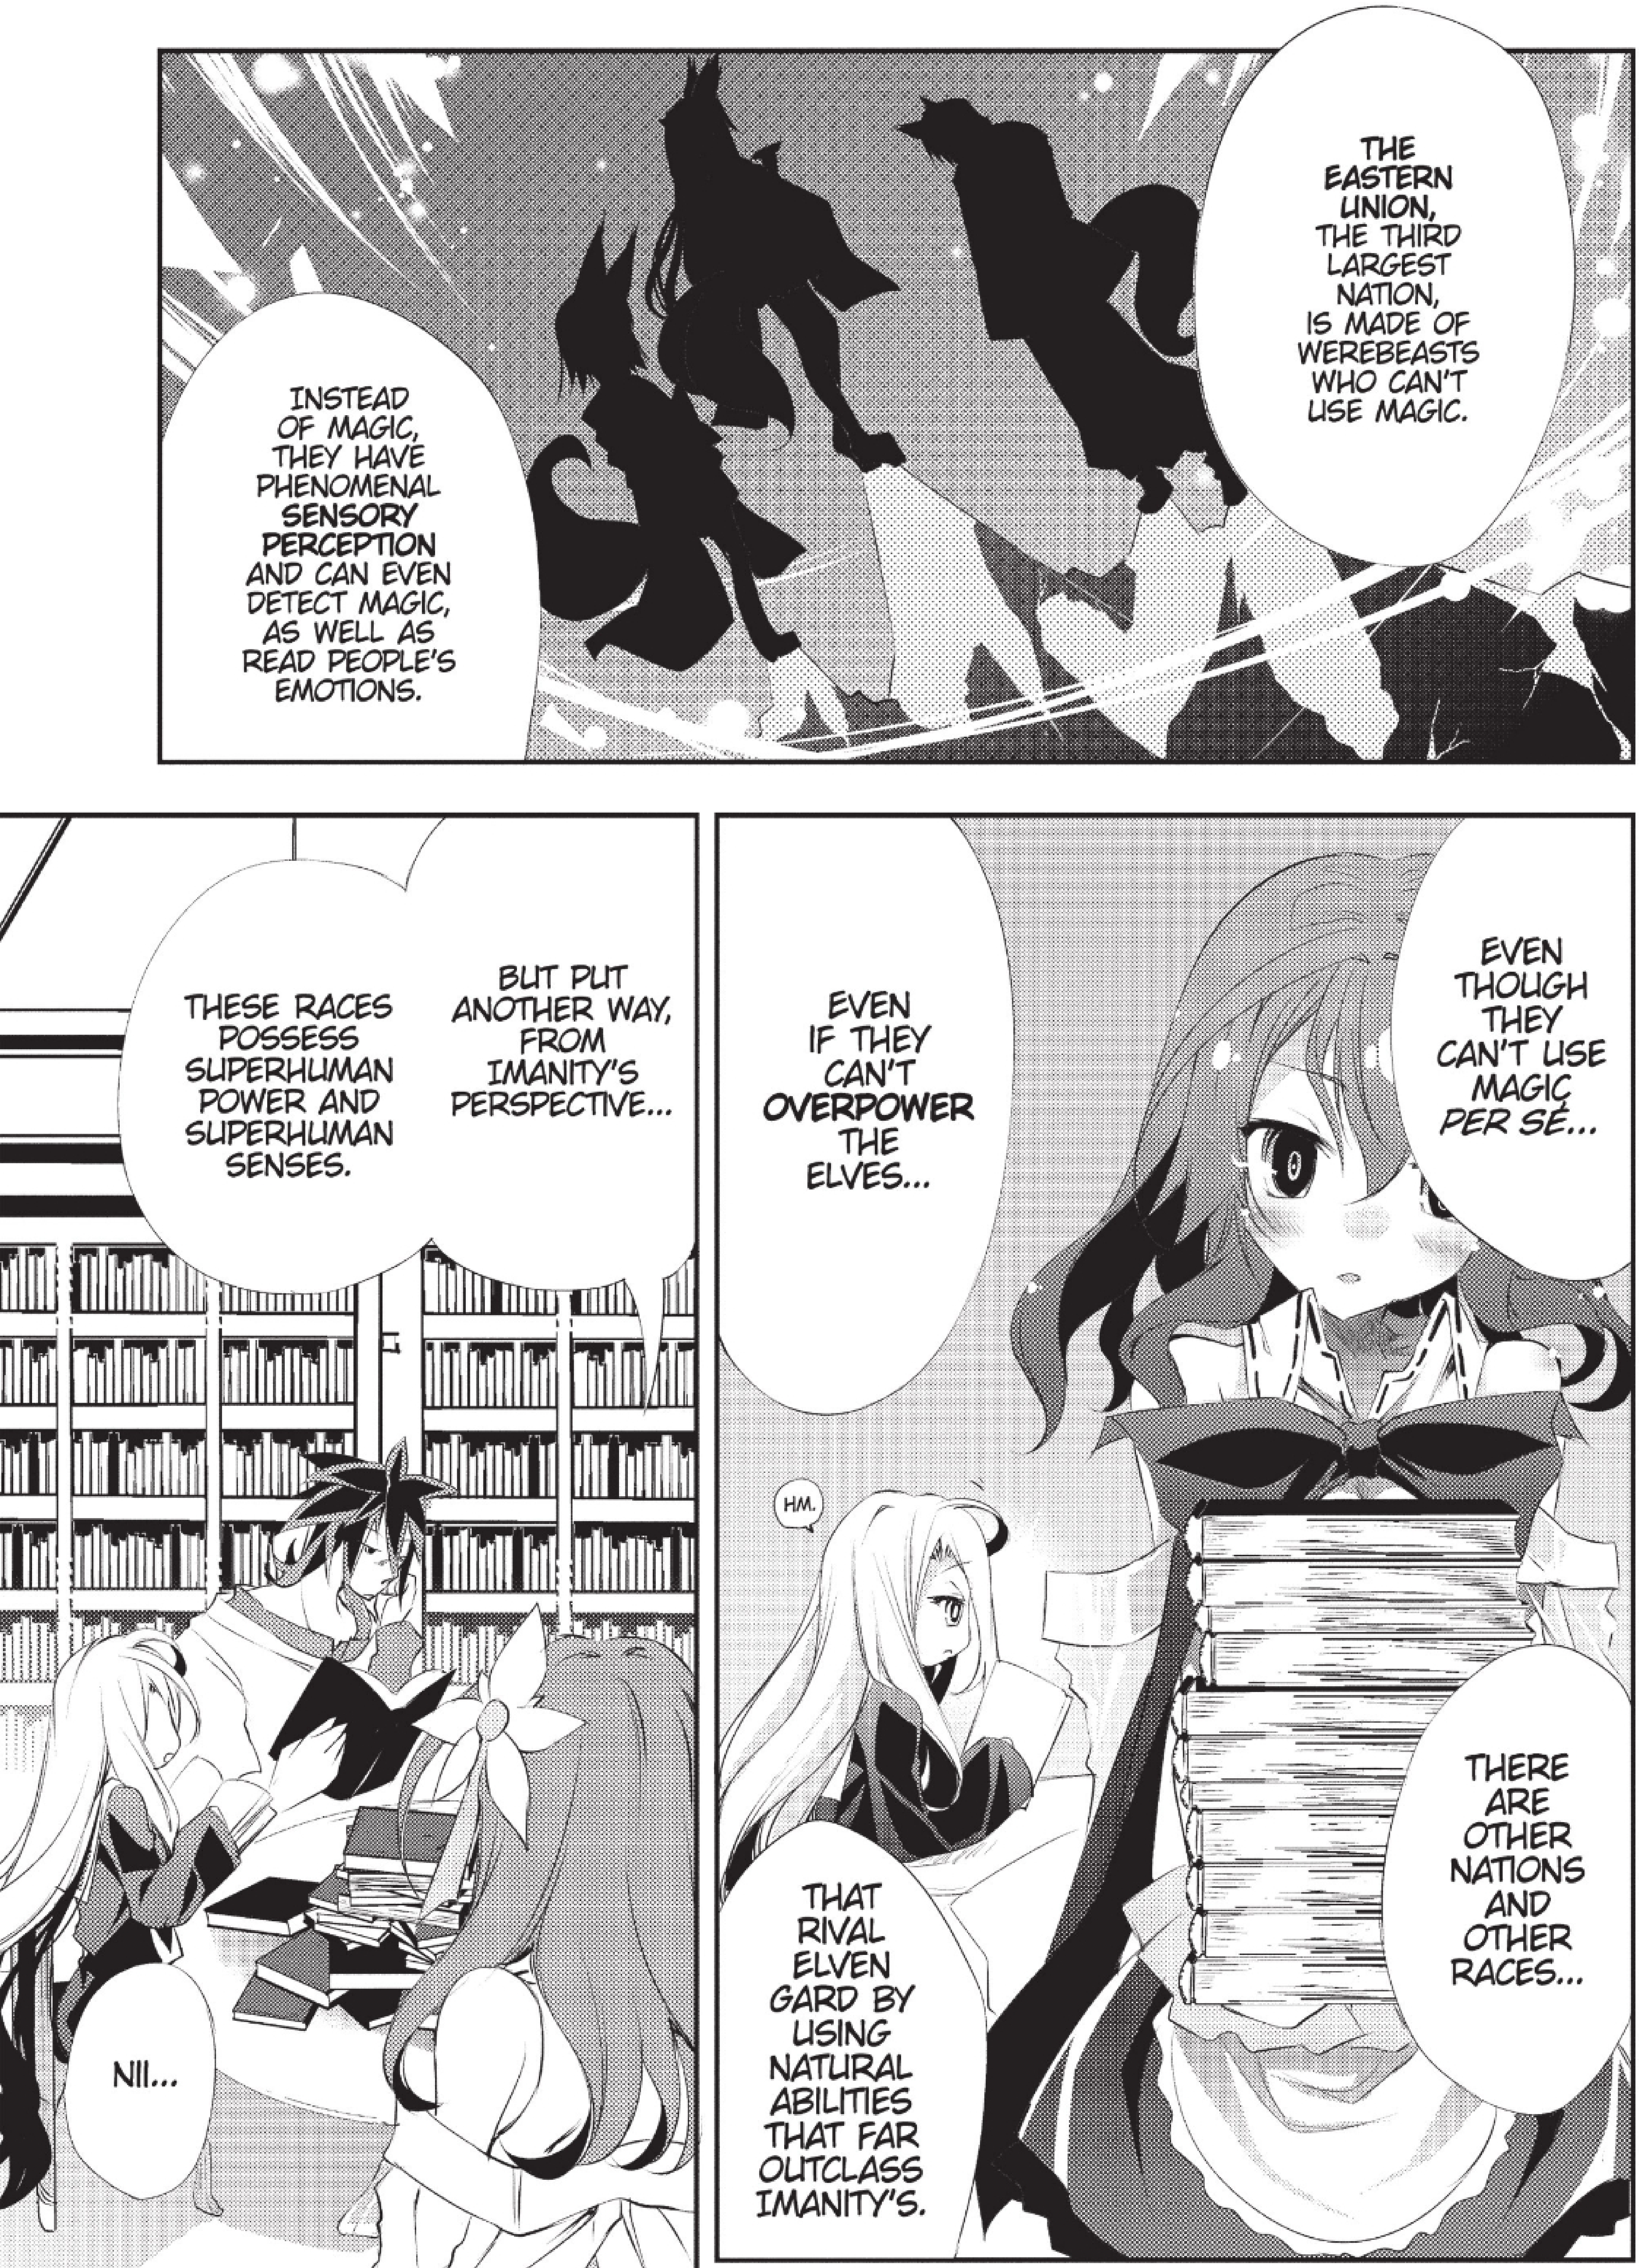
HOW RUDE!!
I...!
I MAY NOT LOOK IT, BUT I'LL HAVE YOU KNOW I GRADUATED FROM THE ACADEMY!
IMANITY'S POSITION ON THE HIERARCHY...
IS NUMBER SIXTEEN, AT THE VERY BOTTOM.
OUR MAGIC APTITUDE IS ZERO.
WE CANNOT USE OR EVEN PERCEIVE MAGIC.
NO ONE KNOWS MORE DETAILS THAN THAT!
GET IT NOW?!
HM? HOLD ON A SEC.



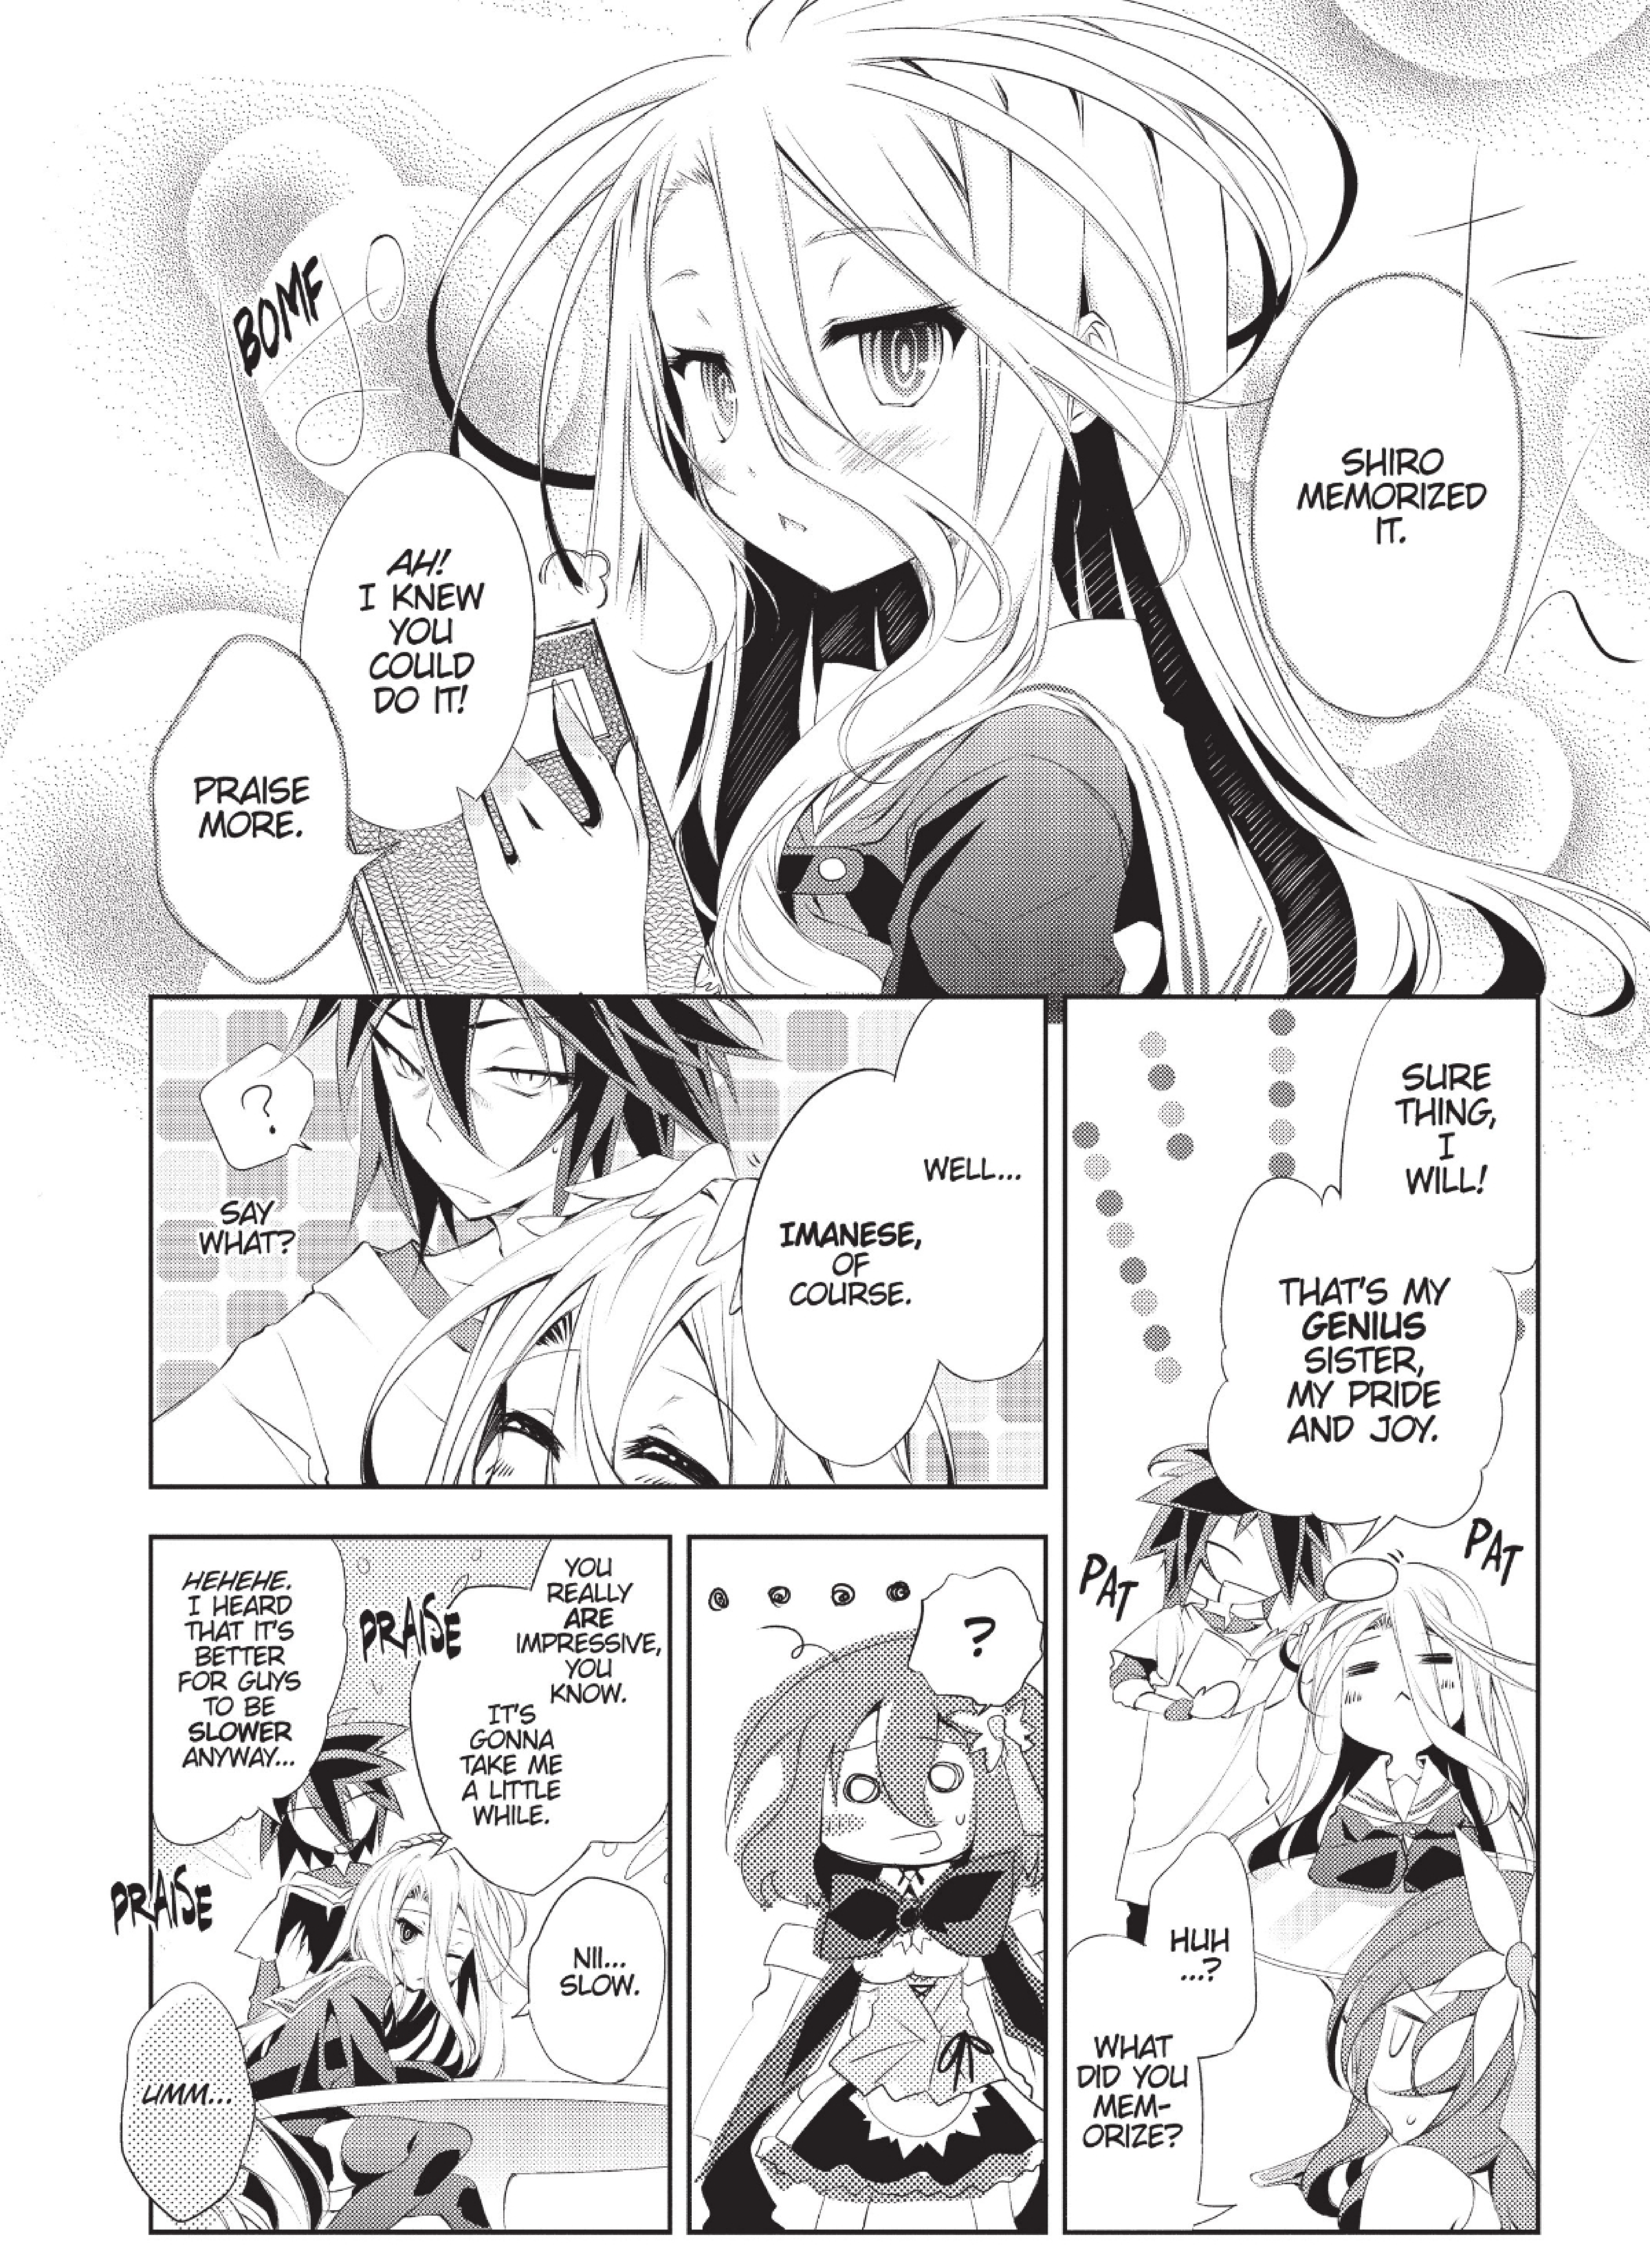
Y... YEAH.
WE CAN'T EVEN SEE IT IN ACTION.
BLUSH
SHAKE SHAKE
ISN'T THERE LIKE...
SOME SPECIAL TOOL YOU CAN USE TO SEE IT?
WE CAN PLAY GAMES MADE WITH MAGIC...
BUT WE CANNOT USE IT.
NO EXCEPTIONS.
TUNK
ARE YOU SAYING THAT IMANITY...
IS ENTIRELY INCAPABLE OF MAGIC?
SPIRITUAL CORRIDOR LINK NERVES.
IMANITY LACK THE CIRCUITS THAT LINK TO THE SOURCE OF MAGIC...
THAT'S WHY...
WE LOSE OUR LAND IN GAMBLES OVER TERRITORY.
......



LOOKING AT IT FROM THE OTHER SIDE...
THE ONES WHO CAN USE MAGIC THE BEST...
ARE THE OLD DEUS, IN THE NUMBER-ONE SPOT?
AH, NOT QUITE. THE BEINGS AT THE TOP OF THE HIERARCHY ARE GODS WHO ARE COMPRISED OF A CERTAIN KIND OF MAGIC.
IF WE'RE TALKING MAGIC MANIPULATION, A TYPICAL ELF AT RANK SEVEN WOULD PROBABLY BE THE BEST.
ELVES ARE THOSE POINTY-EARED, FAIR-SKINNED ONES, RIGHT?
YES, THAT'S RIGHT.
I'M IMPRESSED YOU KNEW.
THEIR NATION OF ELVEN GARD HAS RISEN TO BECOME THE LARGEST POWER IN THE WORLD DUE TO THEIR MASTERY OF MAGIC.
HMMM...
SO FOR THE RACE THAT CAN'T USE MAGIC, THE IDEA OF BUILDING AN "EMPIRE" IS TOTALLY OUT?
NO. FOR EXAMPLE...



THE EASTERN UNION, THE THIRD LARGEST NATION, IS MADE OF WEREBEASTS WHO CAN'T USE MAGIC.
INSTEAD OF MAGIC, THEY HAVE PHENOMENAL SENSORY PERCEPTION AND CAN EVEN DETECT MAGIC, AS WELL AS READ PEOPLE'S EMOTIONS.
EVEN THOUGH THEY CAN'T USE MAGIC PER SÉ...
EVEN IF THEY CAN'T OVERPOWER THE ELVES...
HM.
THERE ARE OTHER NATIONS AND OTHER RACES...
THAT RIVAL ELVEN GARD BY USING NATURAL ABILITIES THAT FAR OUTCLASS IMANITY'S.
BUT PUT ANOTHER WAY, FROM IMANITY'S PERSPECTIVE...
THESE RACES POSSESS SUPERHUMAN POWER AND SUPERHUMAN SENSES.
NII...



SHIRO MEMORIZED IT.
BOMF
AH! I KNEW YOU COULD DO IT!
PRAISE MORE.
SURE THING, I WILL!
THAT'S MY GENIUS SISTER, MY PRIDE AND JOY.
PAT
HUH ...?
WHAT DID YOU MEM-ORIZE?
WELL...
IMANESE, OF COURSE.
SAY WHAT?
YOU REALLY ARE IMPRESSIVE, YOU KNOW.
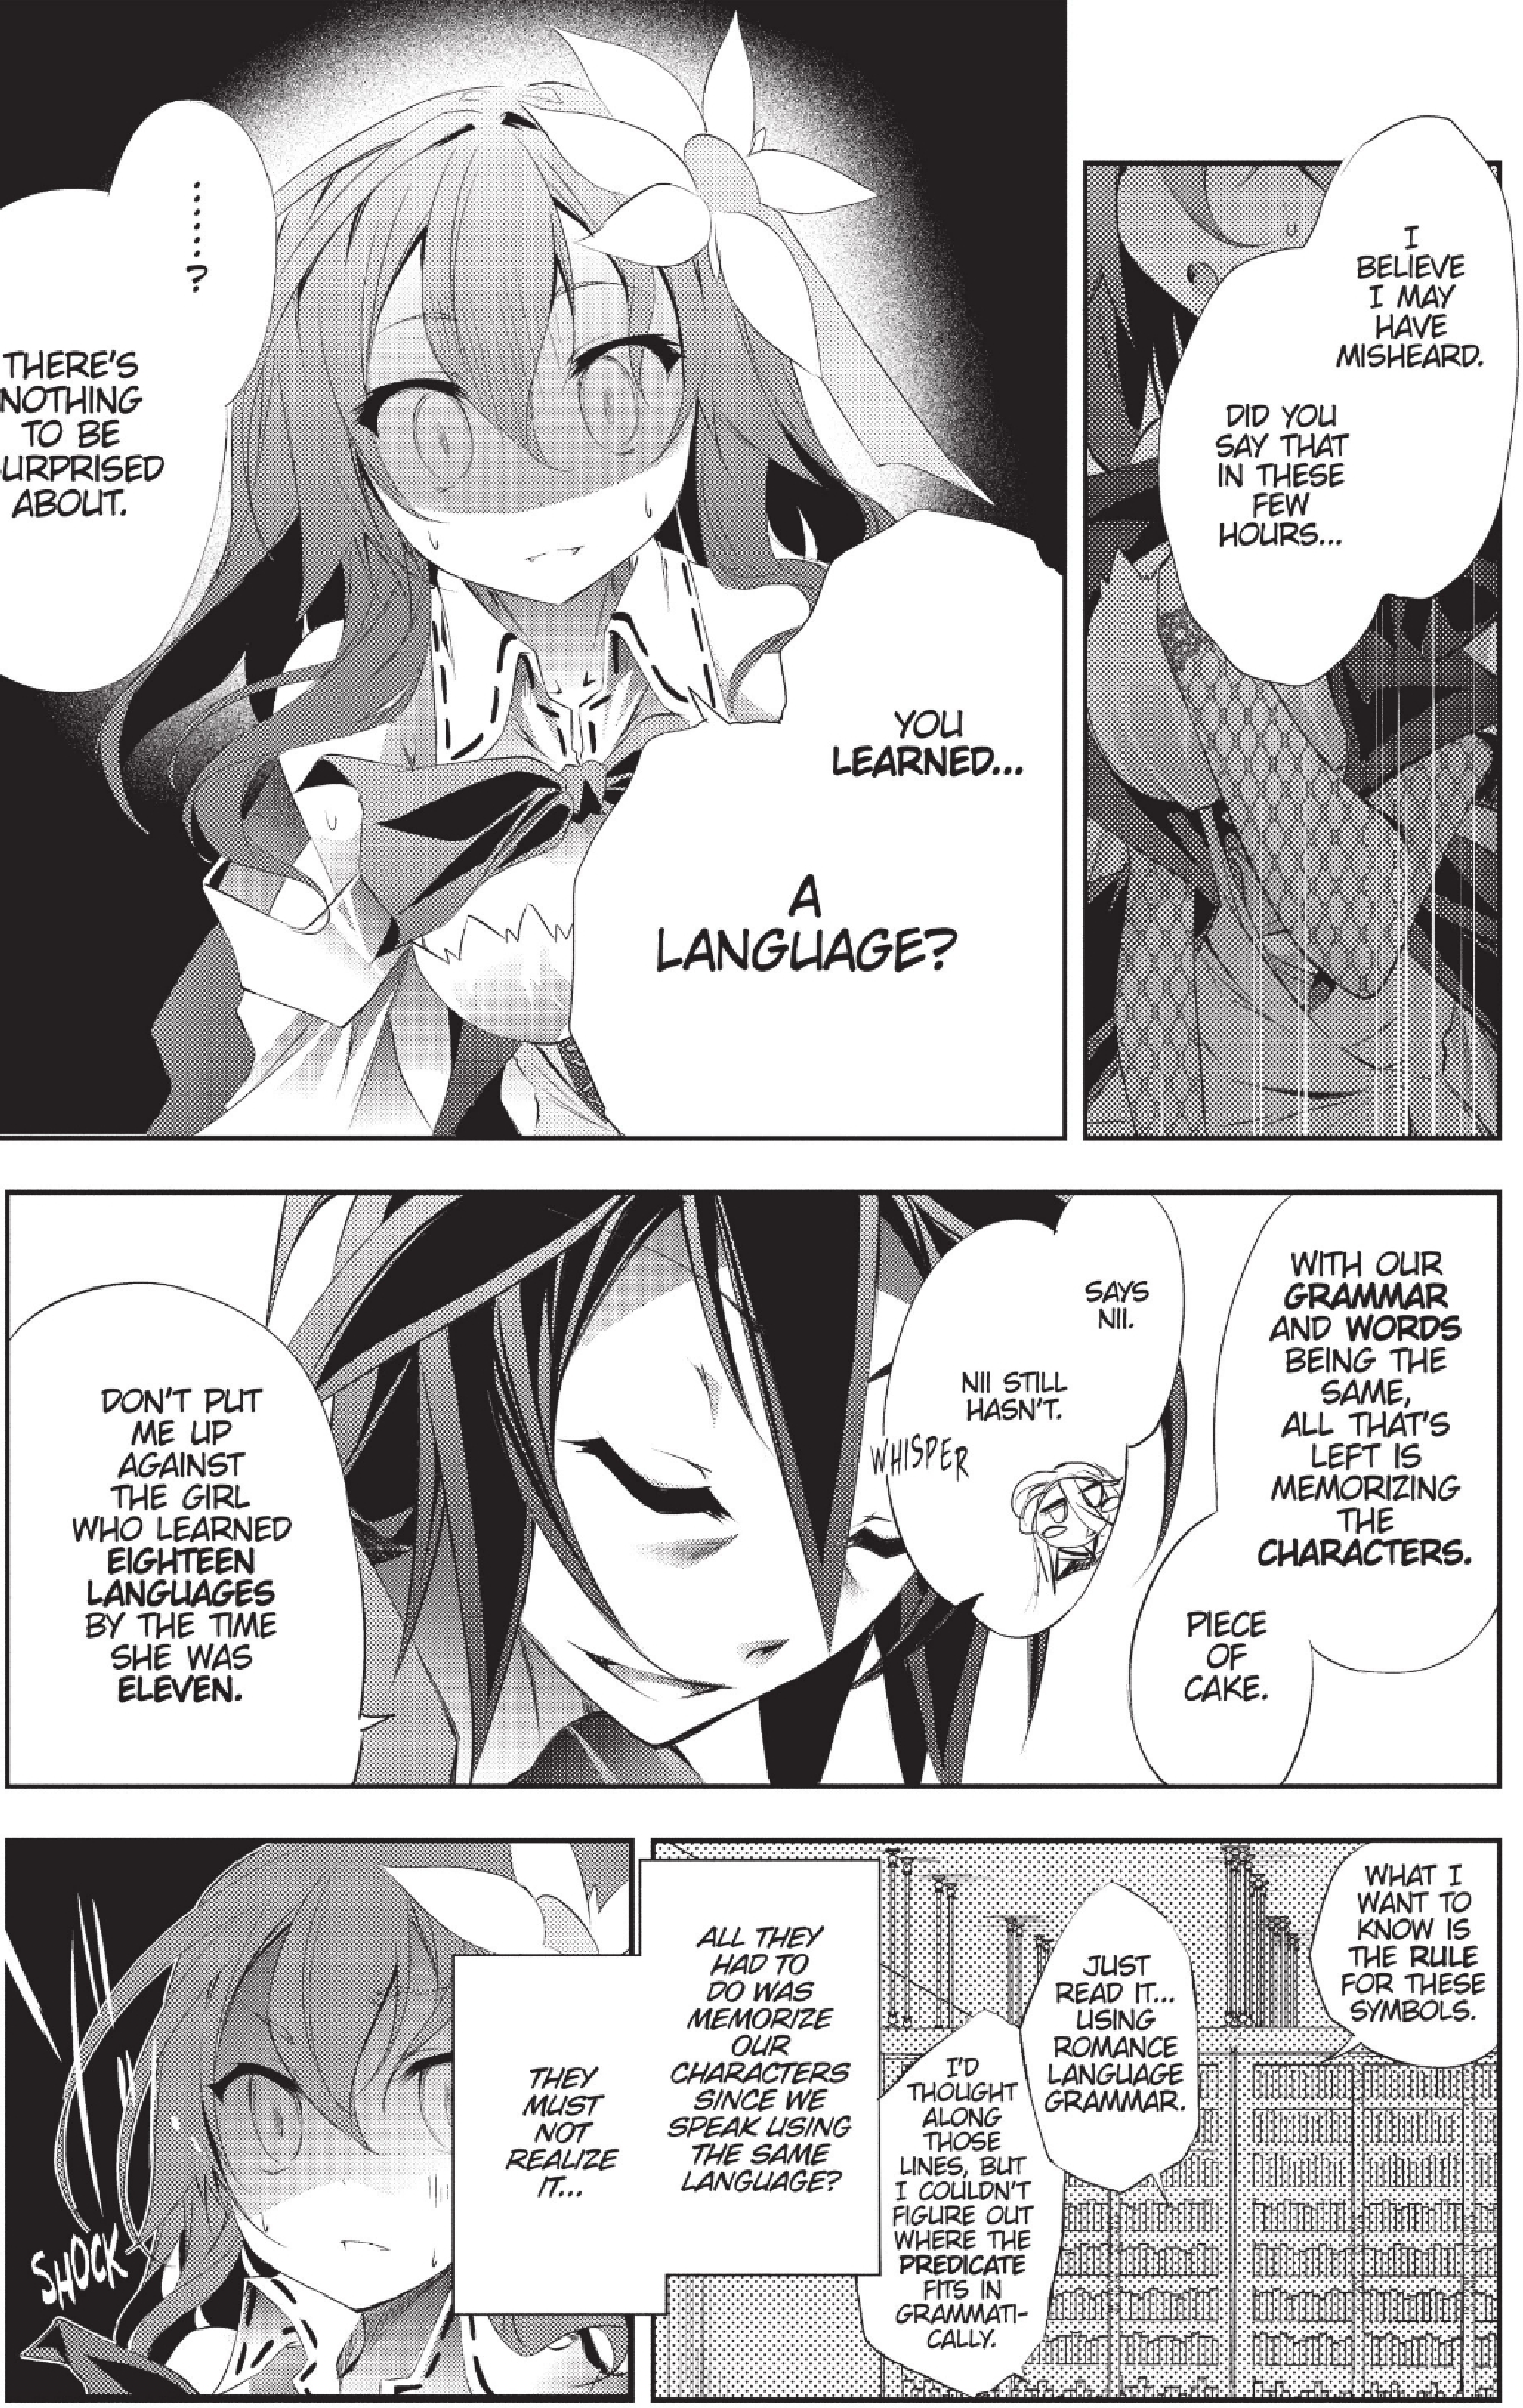
IT'S GONNA TAKE ME A LITTLE WHILE.
PRAISE
HEHEHE. I HEARD THAT IT'S BETTER FOR GUYS TO BE SLOWER ANYWAY...
PRAISE
NII... SLOW.
UMM...



I BELIEVE I MAY HAVE MISHEARD.
DID YOU SAY THAT IN THESE FEW HOURS...
YOU LEARNED...
A LANGUAGE?
......?
THERE'S NOTHING TO BE SURPRISED ABOUT.
WITH OUR GRAMMAR AND WORDS BEING THE SAME, ALL THAT'S LEFT IS MEMORIZING THE CHARACTERS.
PIECE OF CAKE.
SAYS NII.
NII STILL HASN'T.
WHISPER
DON'T PUT ME UP AGAINST THE GIRL WHO LEARNED EIGHTEEN LANGUAGES BY THE TIME SHE WAS ELEVEN.
WHAT I WANT TO KNOW IS THE RULE FOR THESE SYMBOLS.
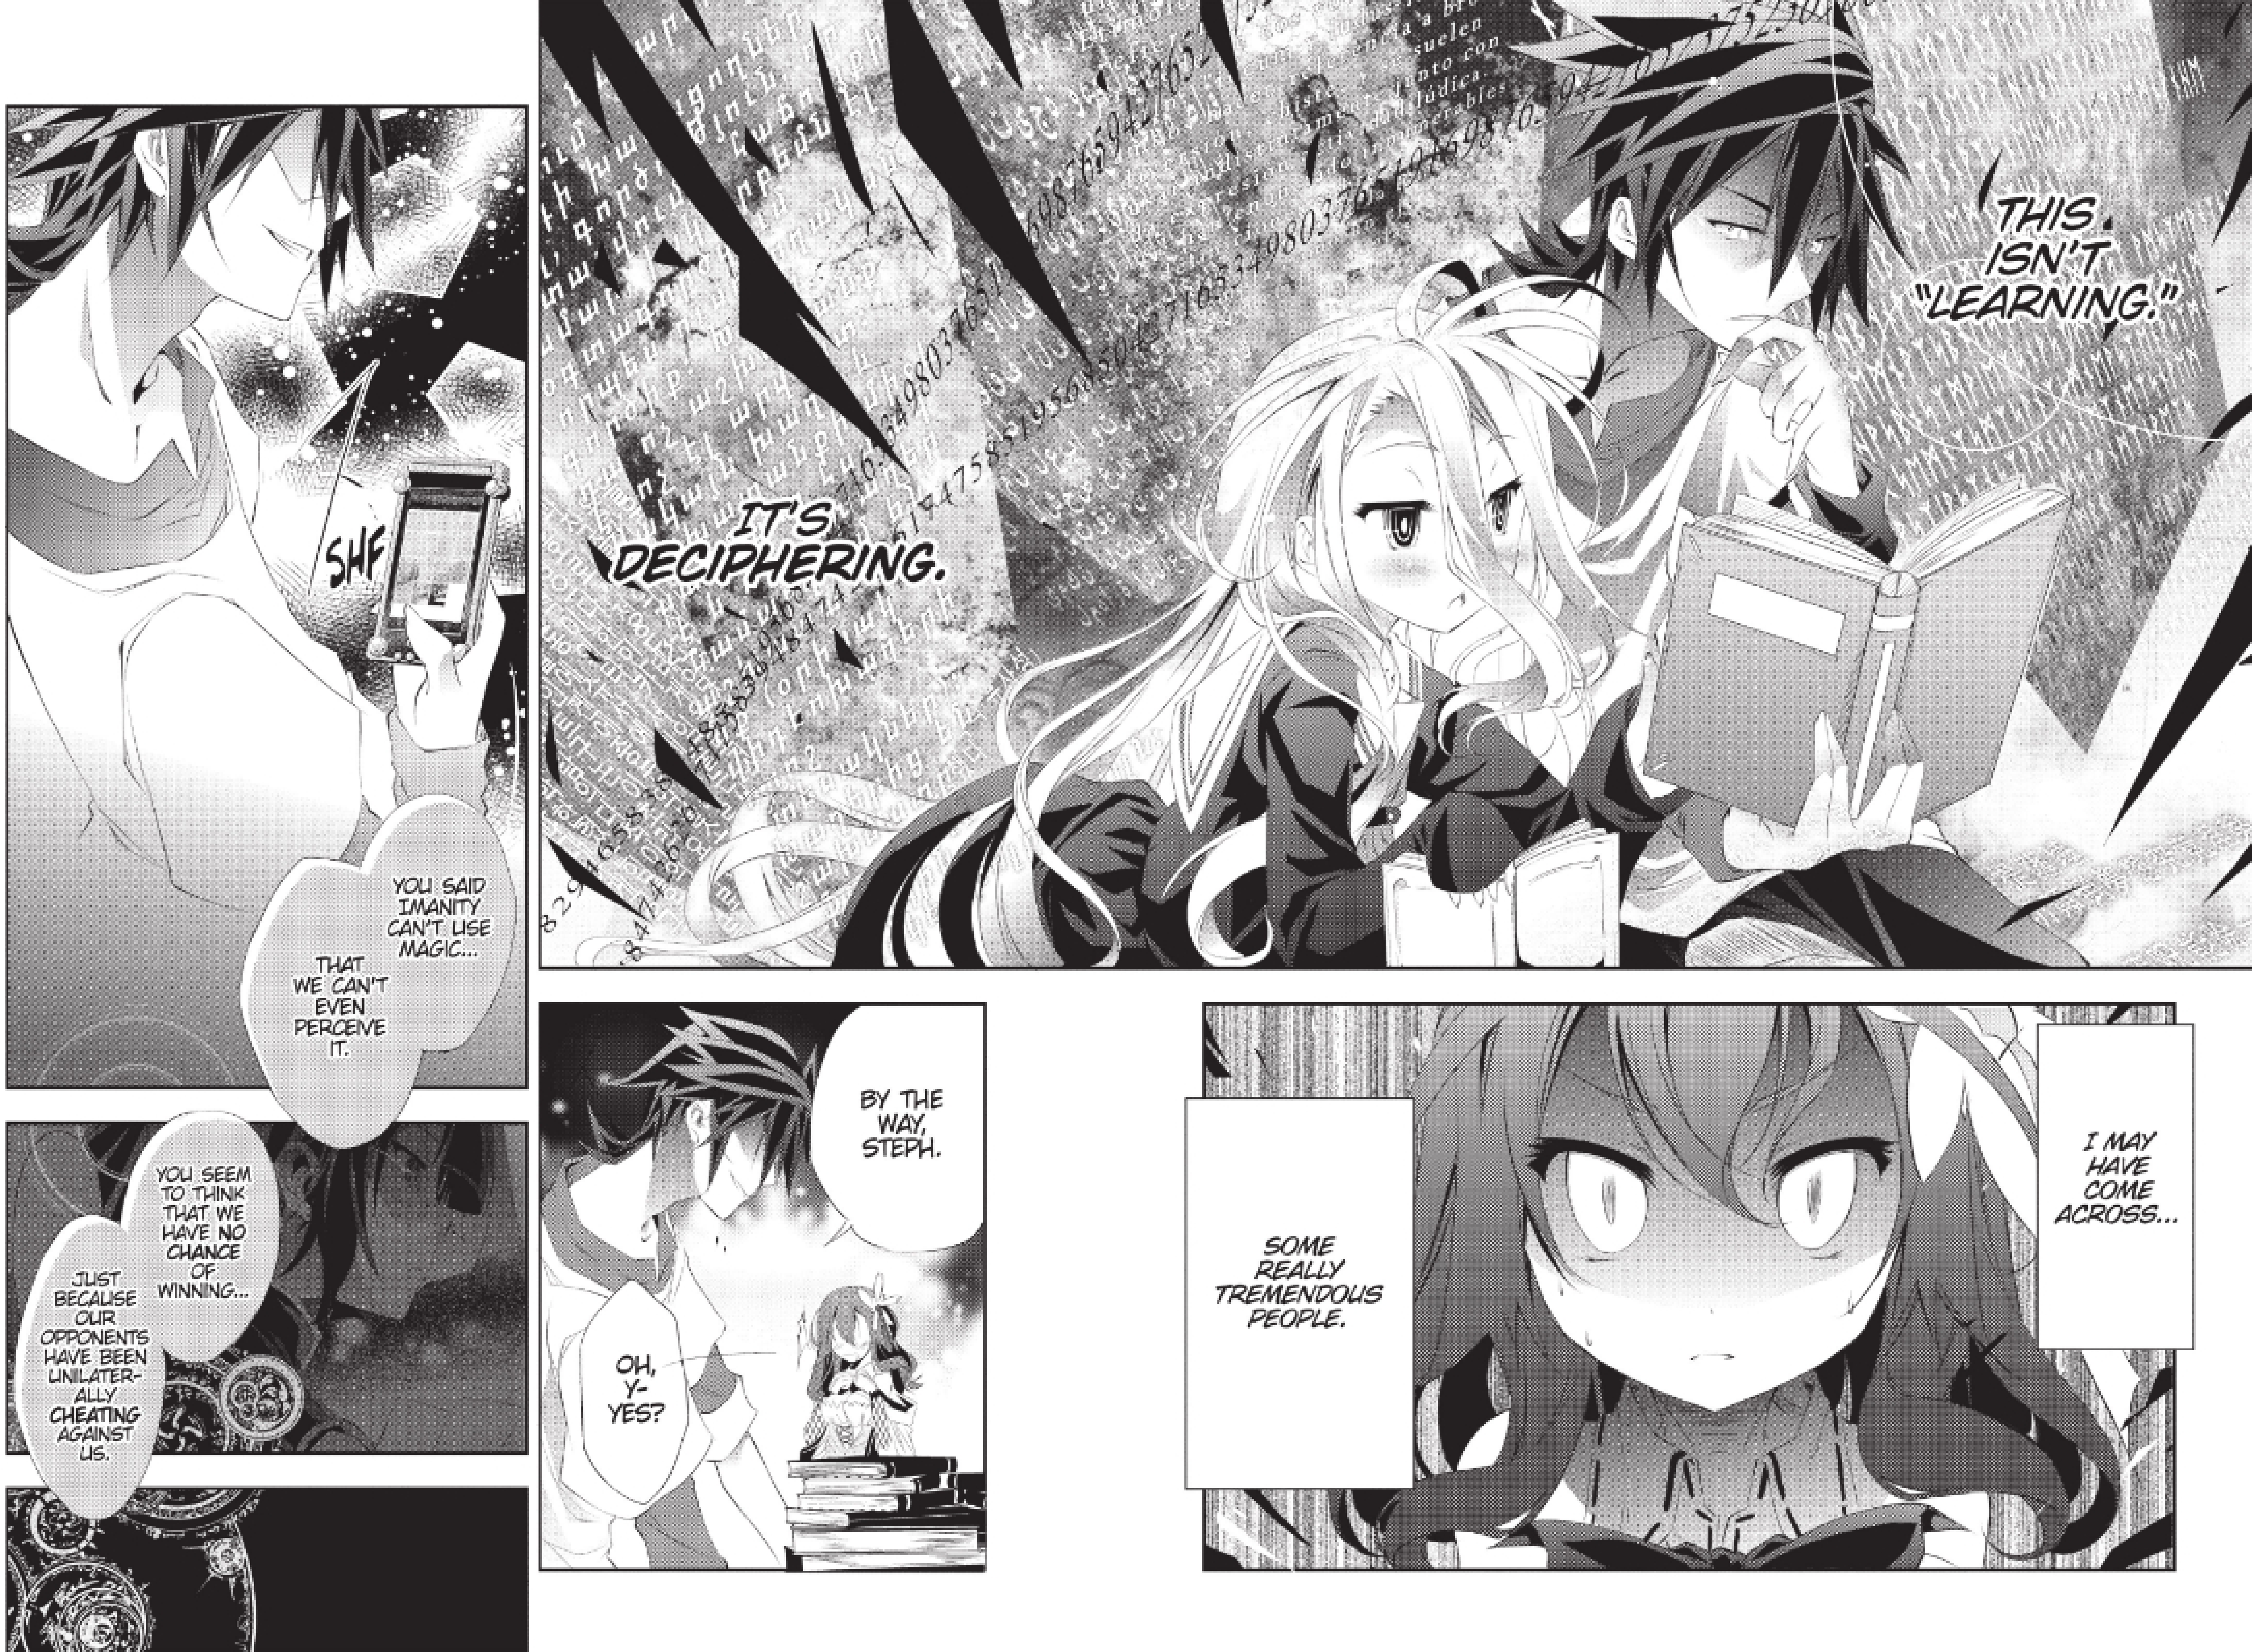
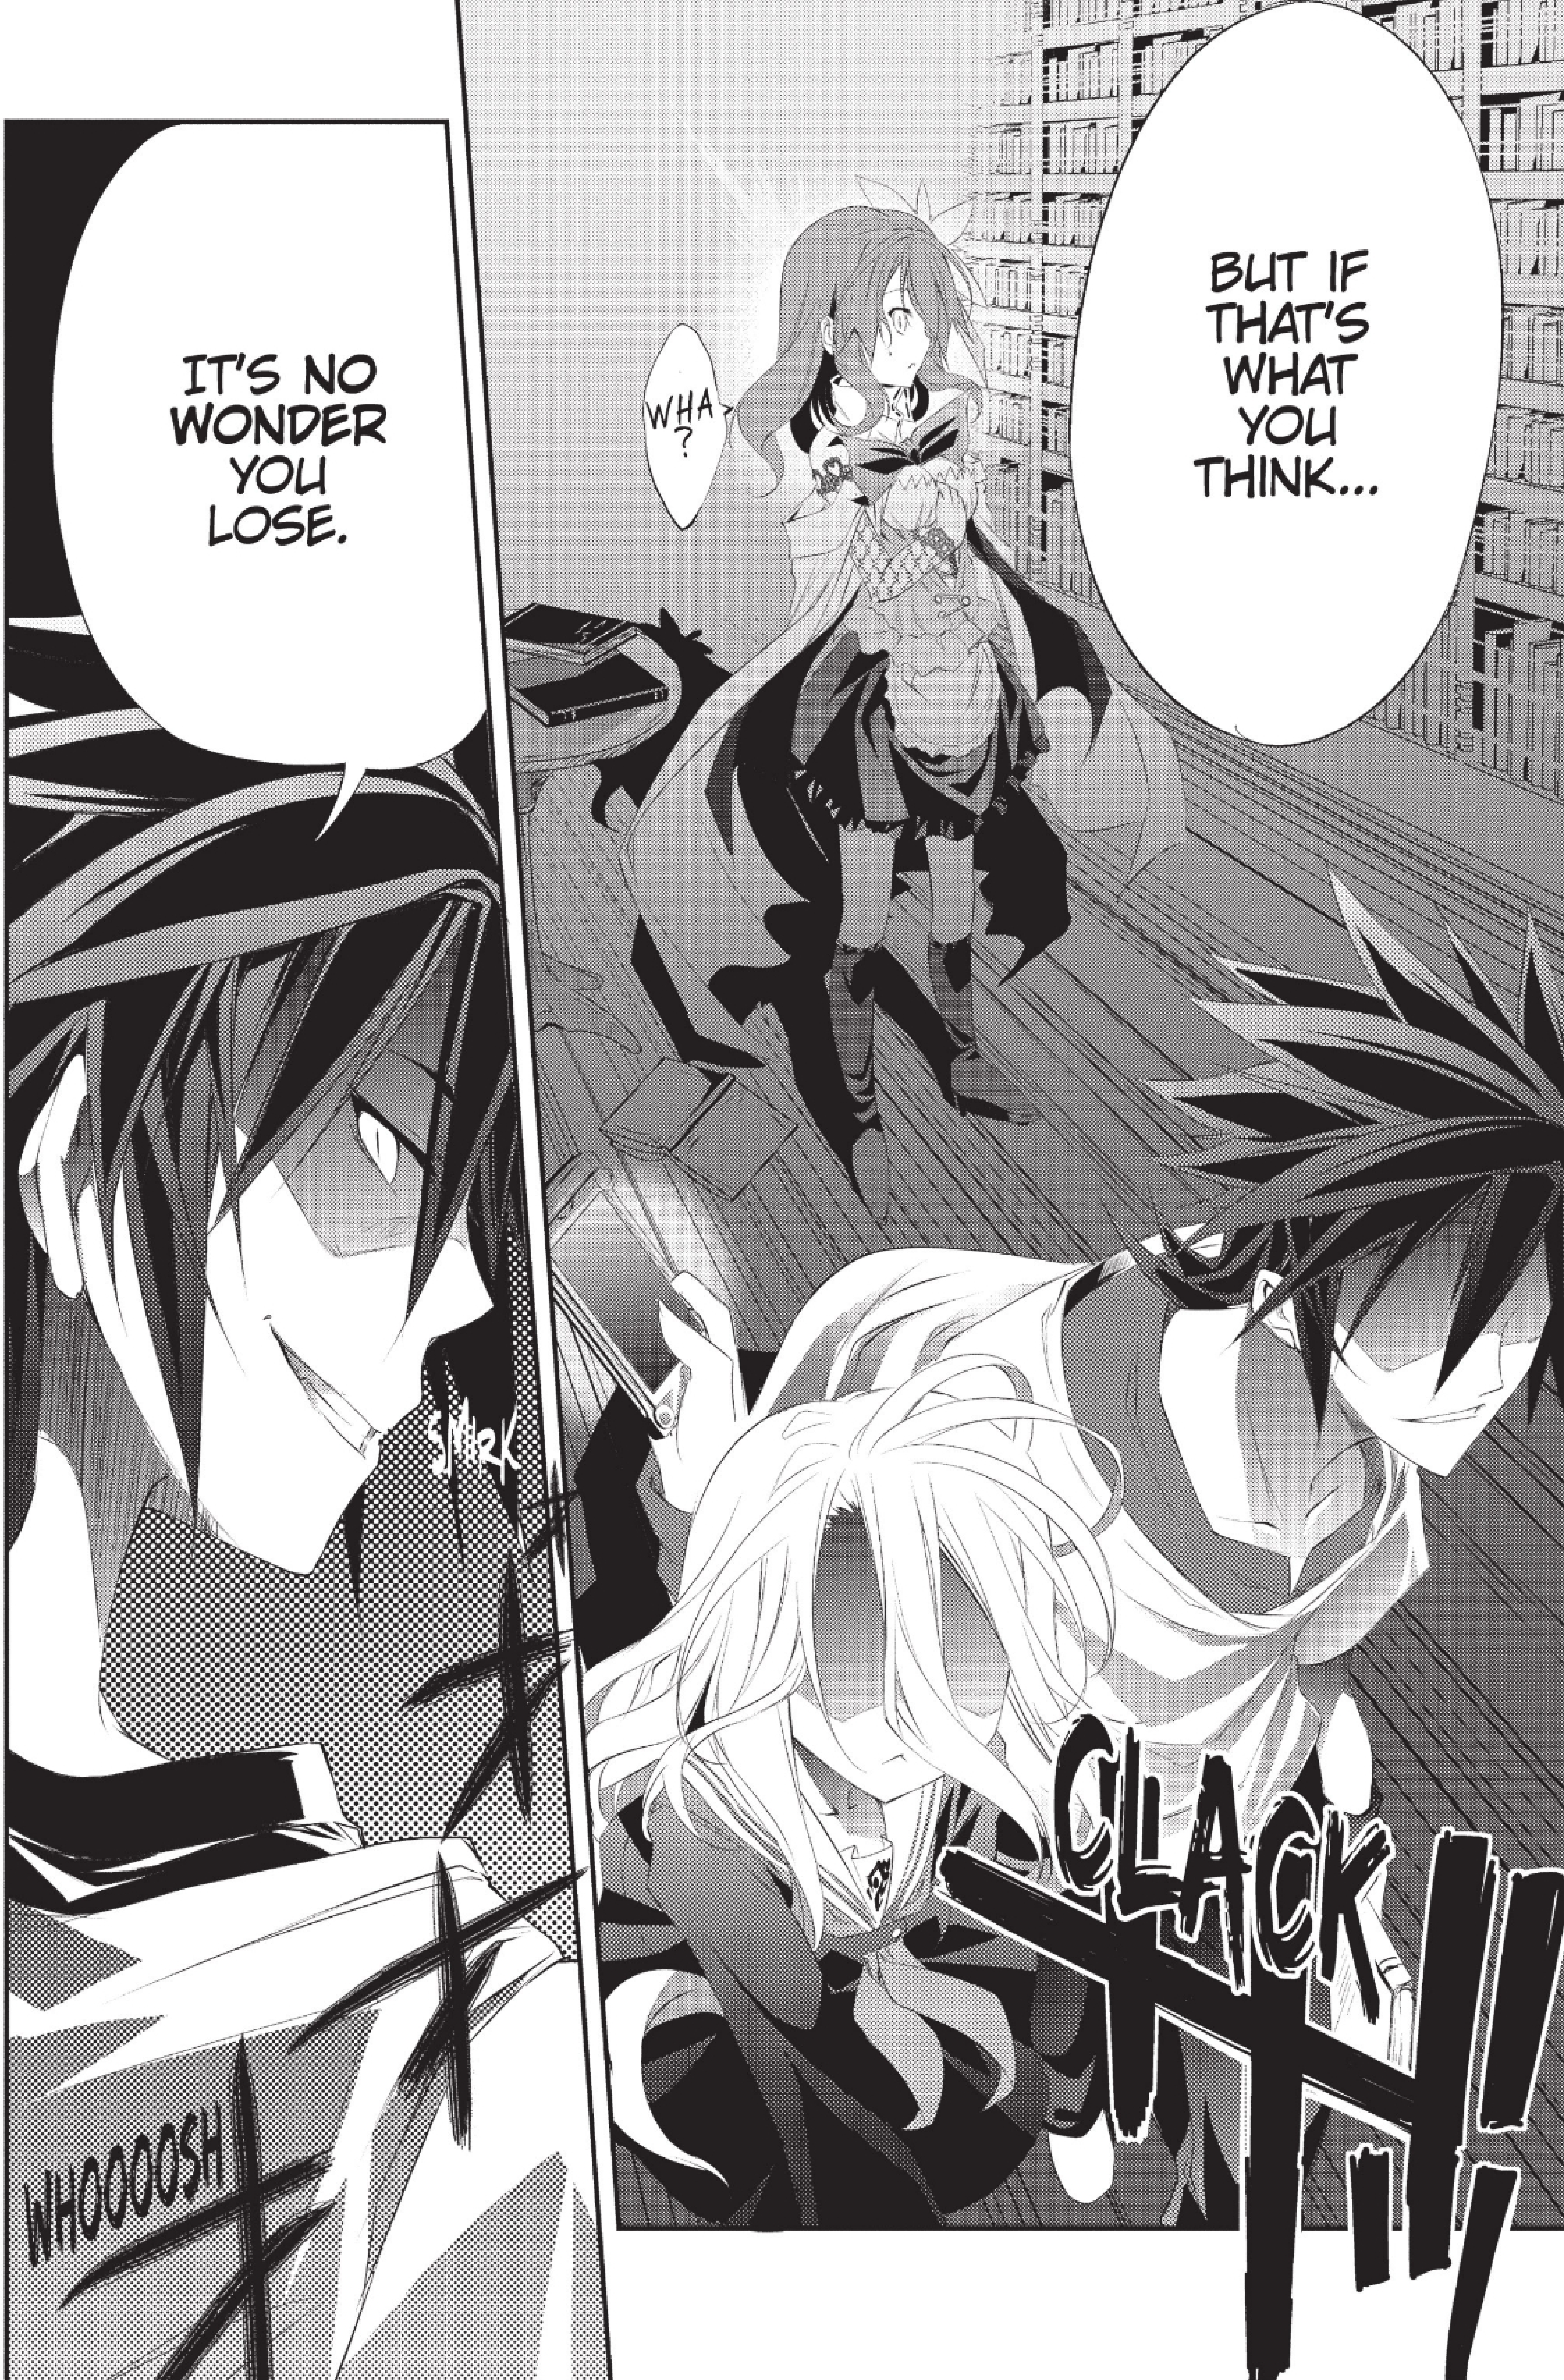
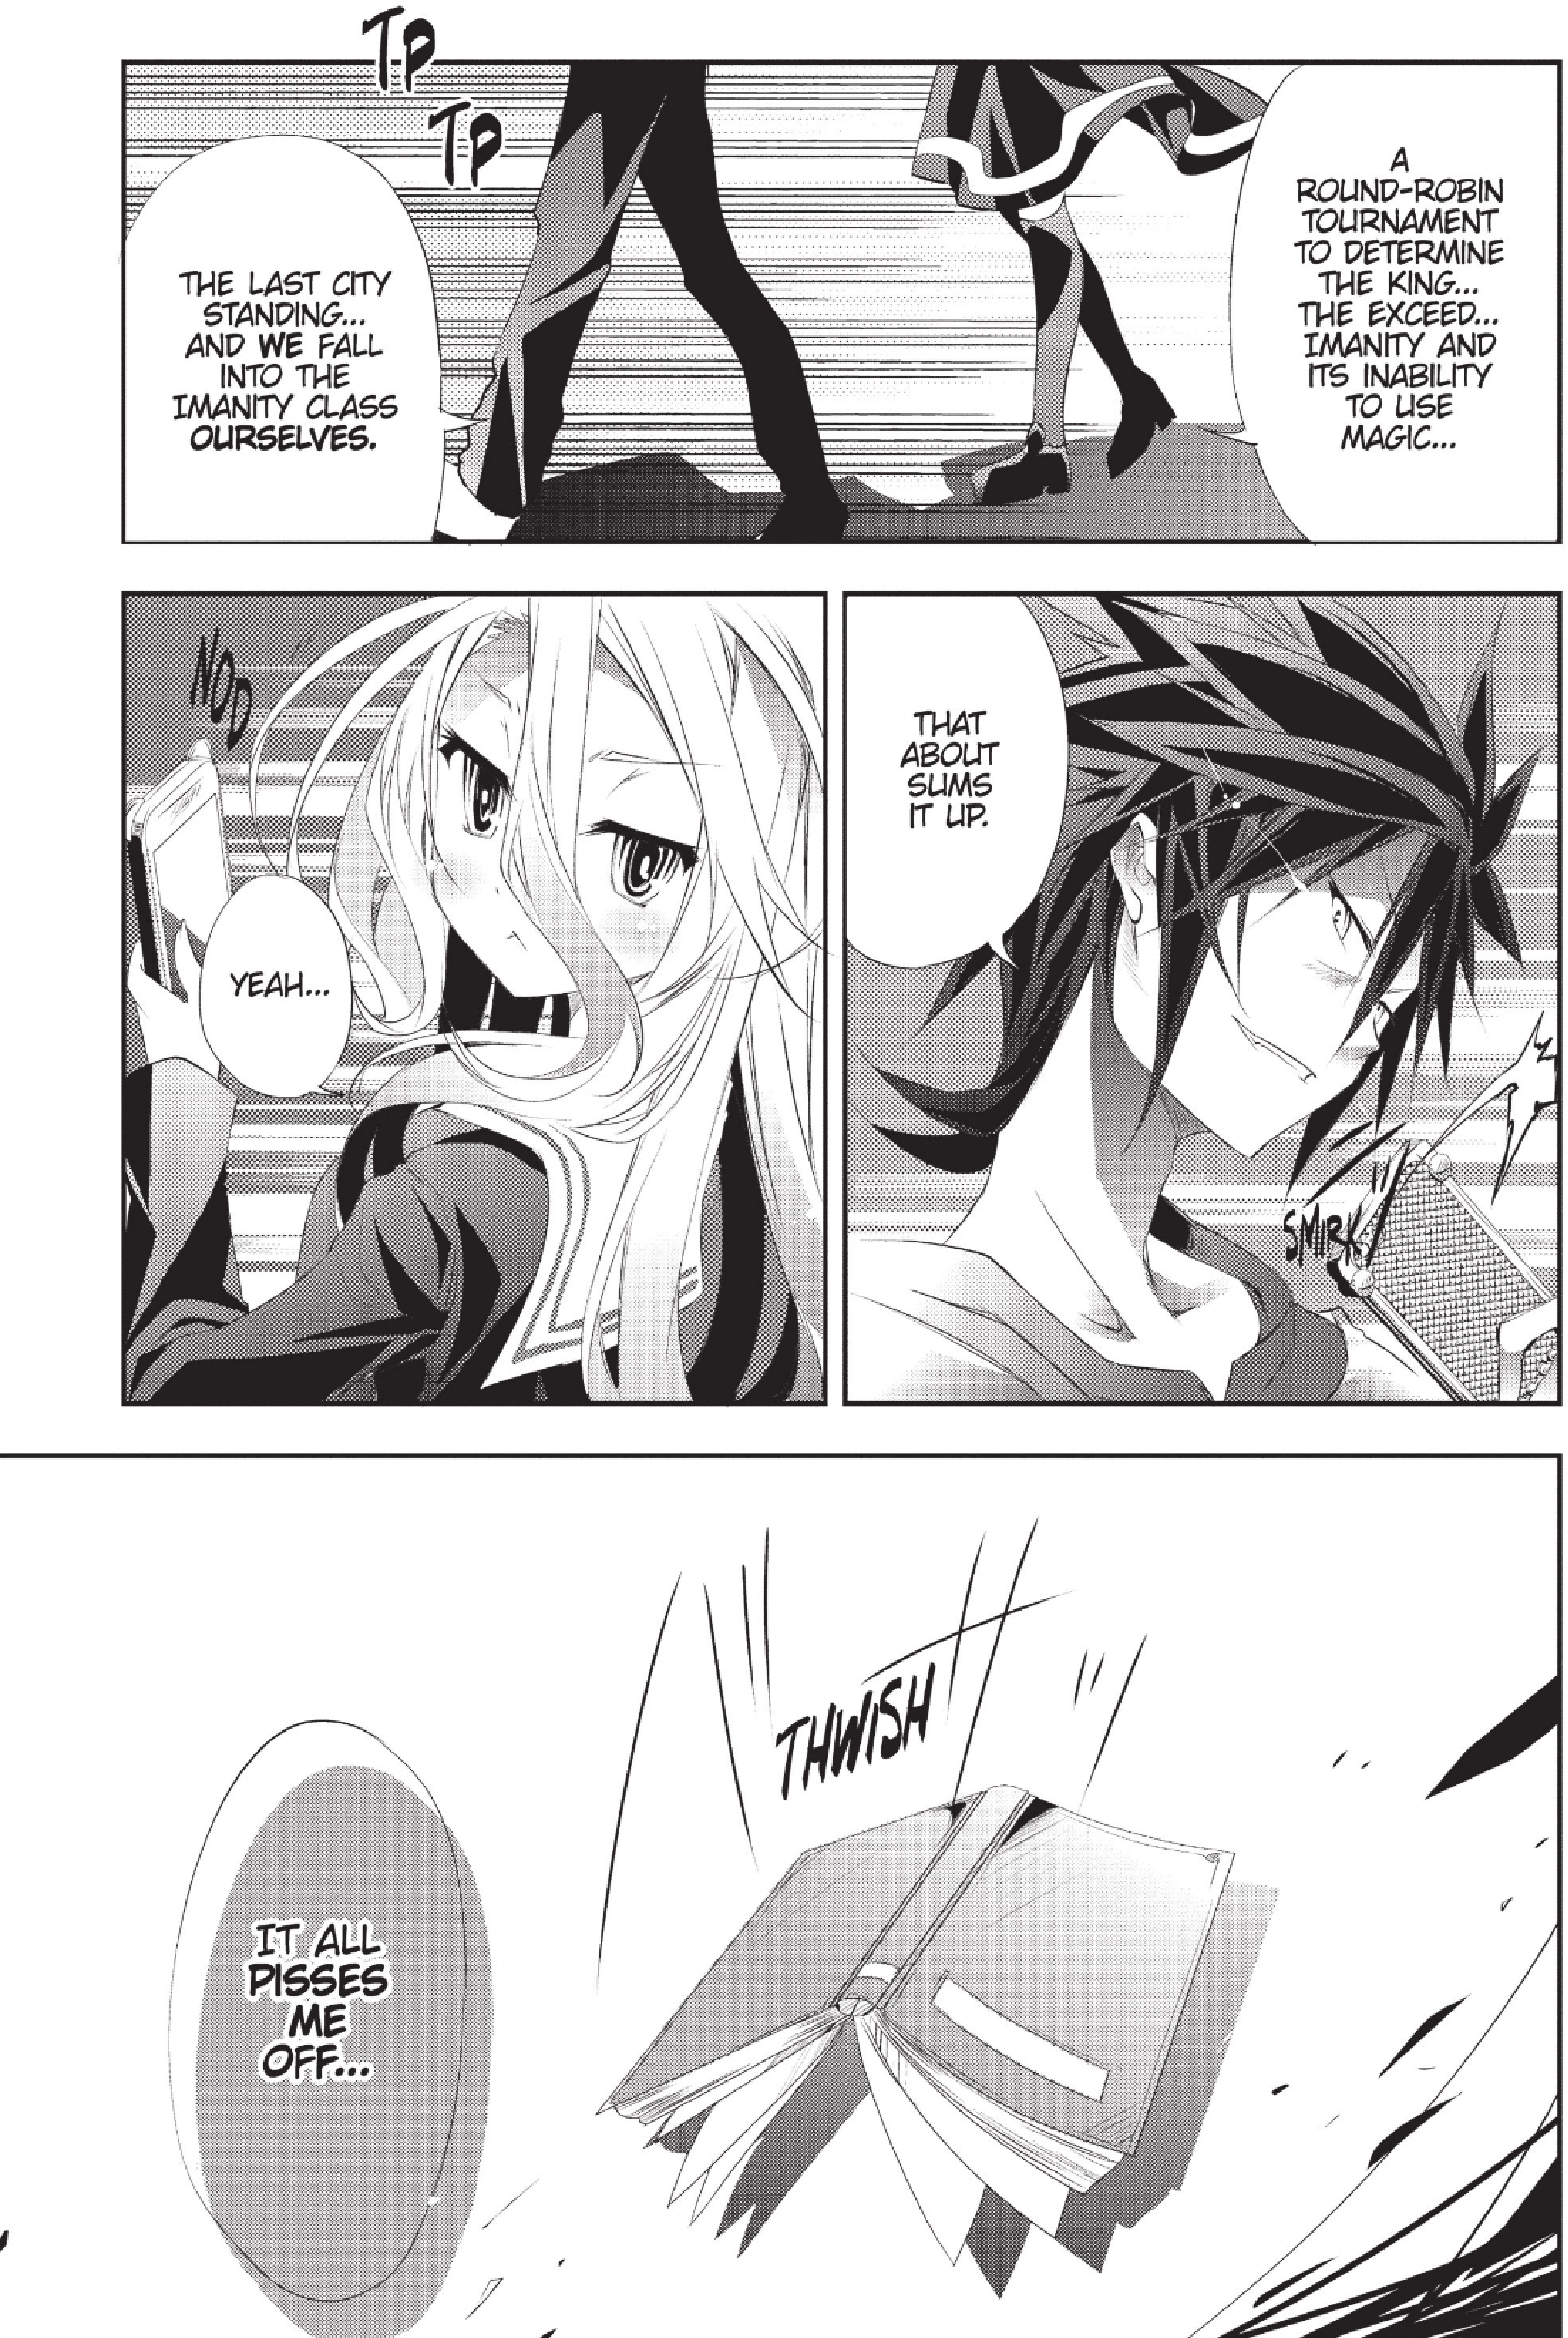
JUST READ IT... USING ROMANCE LANGUAGE GRAMMAR.
I'D THOUGHT ALONG THOSE LINES, BUT I COULDN'T FIGURE OUT WHERE THE PREDICATE FITS IN GRAMMATICALLY.
ALL THEY HAD TO DO WAS MEMORIZE OUR CHARACTERS SINCE WE SPEAK USING THE SAME LANGUAGE?
THEY MUST NOT REALIZE IT...
SHOCK



THIS ISN'T "LEARNING."
IT'S DECIPHERING.
I MAY HAVE COME ACROSS...
SOME REALLY TREMENDOUS PEOPLE.
BY THE WAY, STEPH.
OH, Y-YES?
YOU SAID IMANITY CAN'T USE MAGIC...
THAT WE CAN'T EVEN PERCEIVE IT.
SHF
YOU SEEM TO THINK THAT WE HAVE NO CHANCE OF WINNING...
JUST BECAUSE OUR OPPONENTS HAVE BEEN UNILATERALLY CHEATING AGAINST US.



BUT IF THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK...
WHA?
IT'S NO WONDER YOU LOSE.
CLACK
SMIRK
WHOOOOSH



A ROUND-ROBIN TOURNAMENT TO DETERMINE THE KING... THE EXCEED... IMANITY AND ITS INABILITY TO USE MAGIC...
TP TP
THE LAST CITY STANDING... AND WE FALL INTO THE IMANITY CLASS OURSELVES.
THAT ABOUT SUMS IT UP.
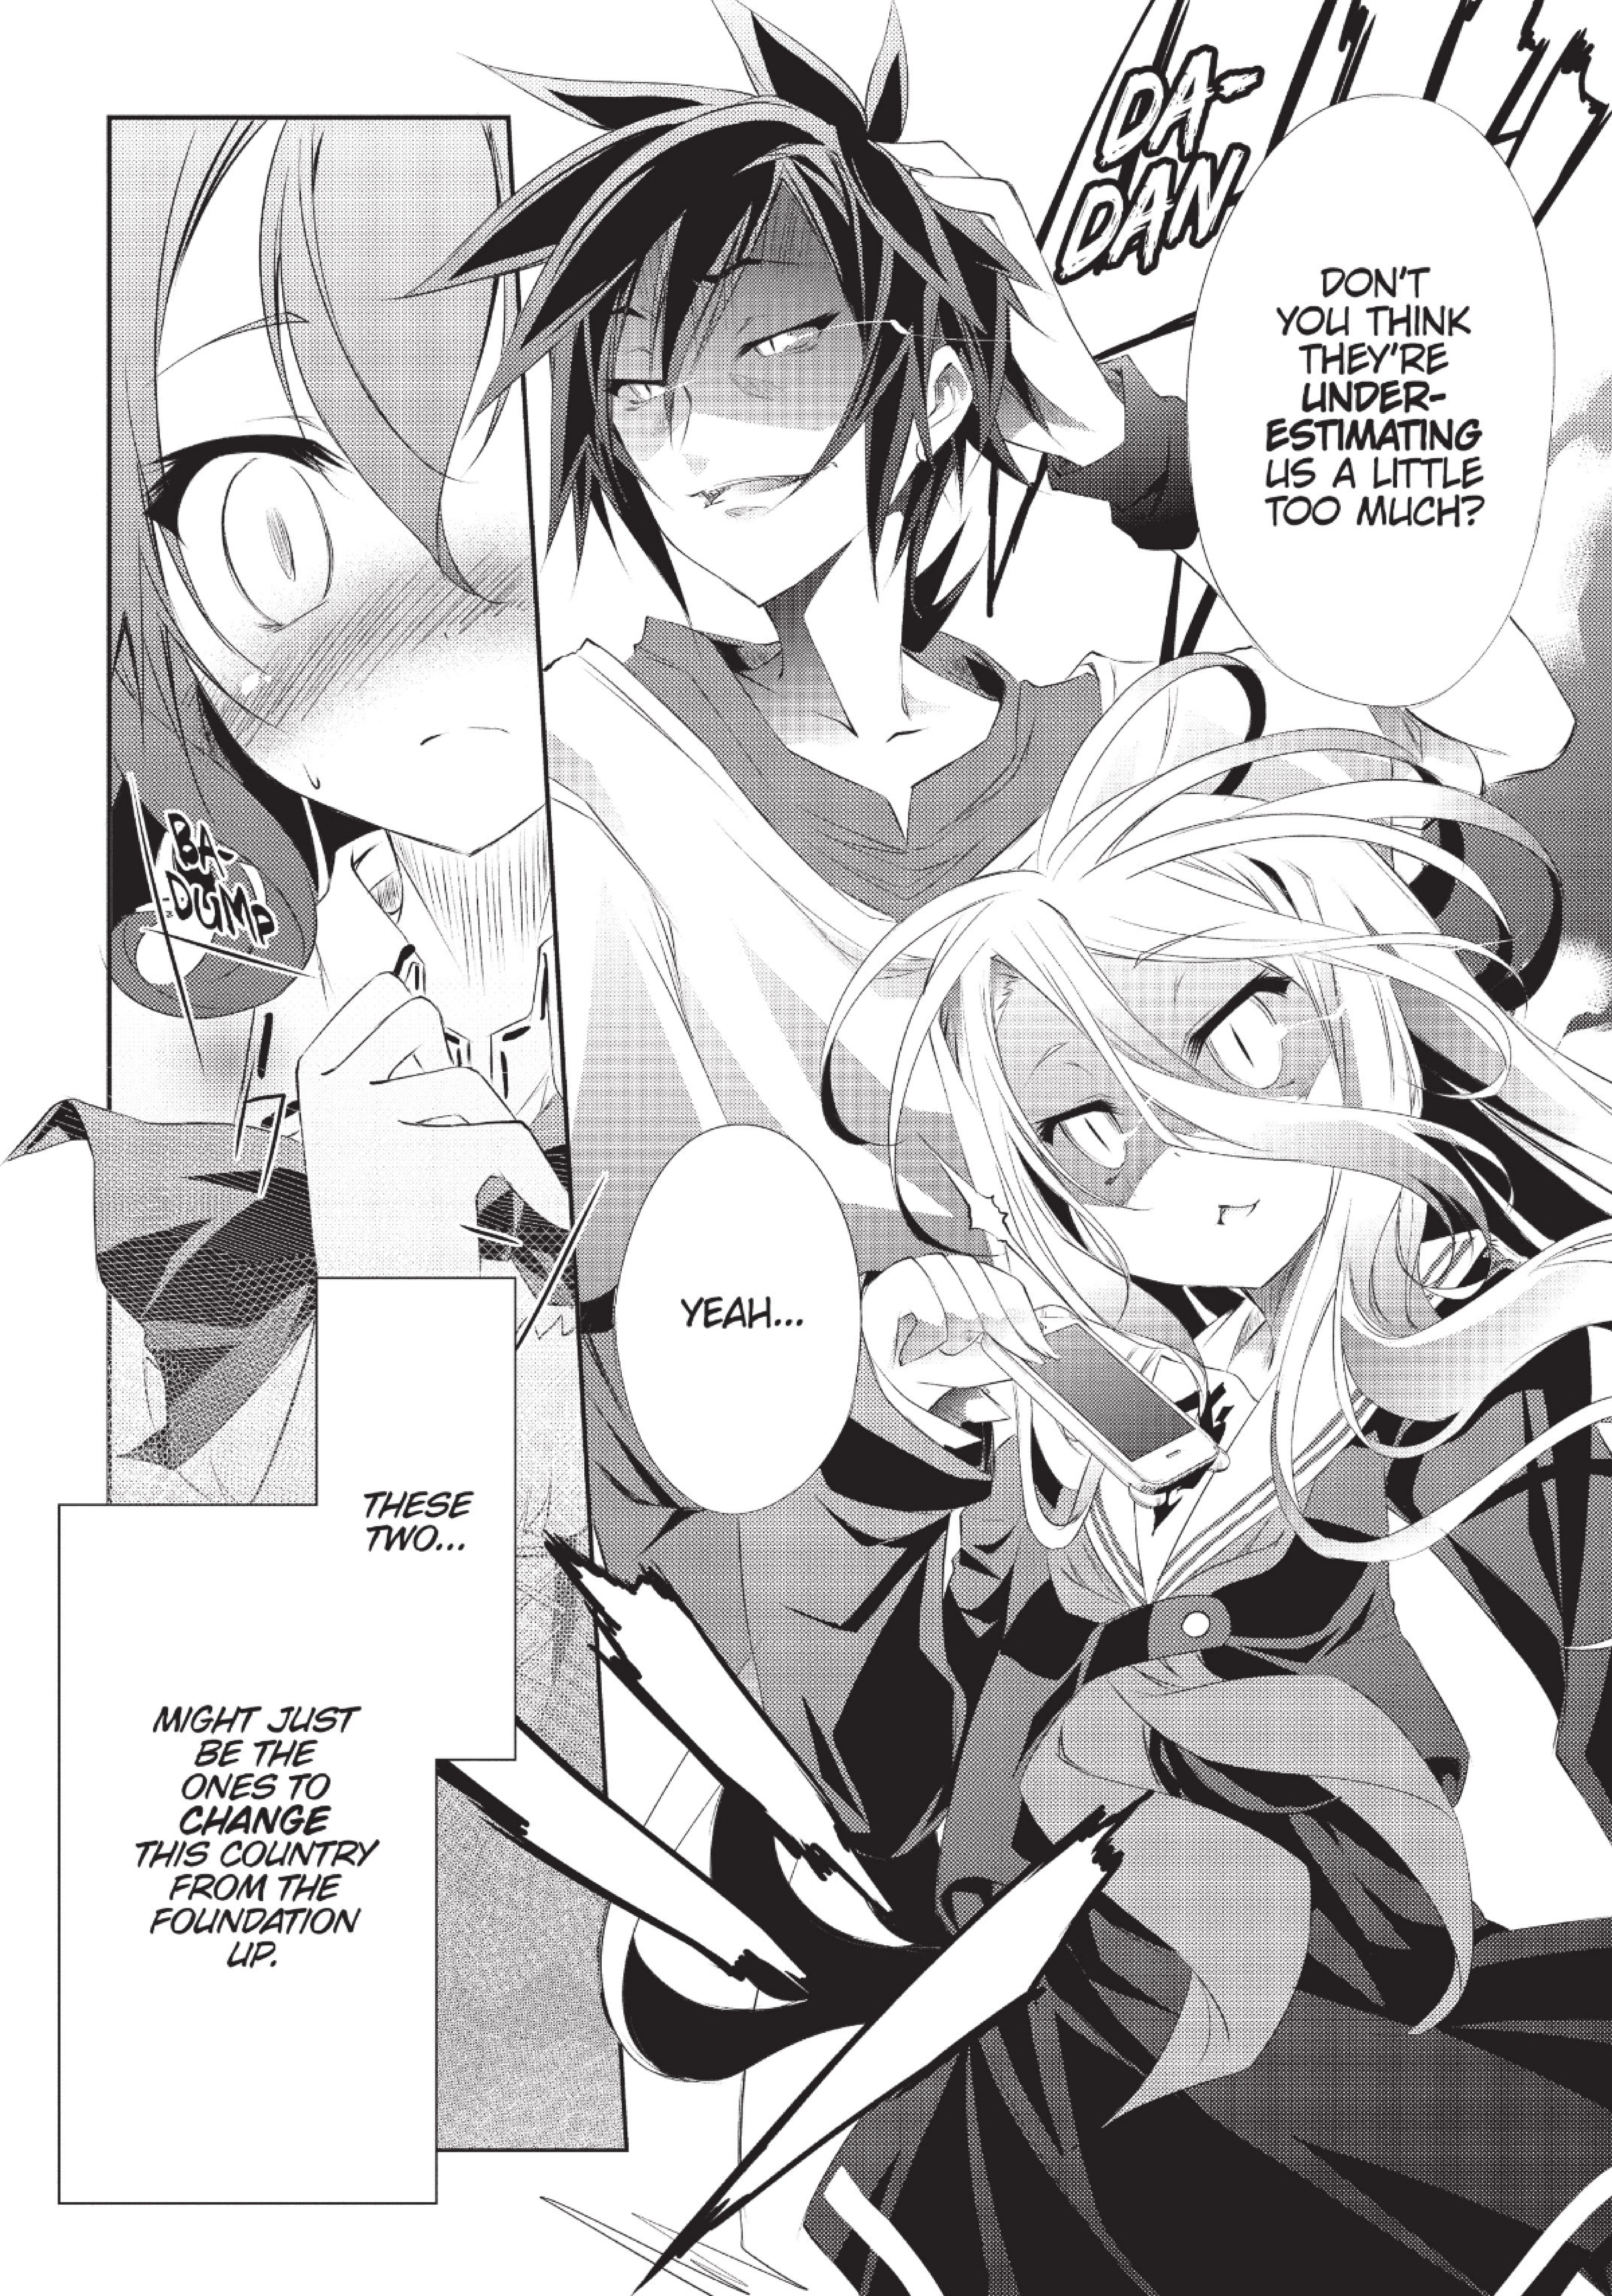
NOD
YEAH...
THWISH
IT ALL PISSES ME OFF...



DA-DAN
DON'T YOU THINK THEY'RE UNDER-ESTIMATING US A LITTLE TOO MUCH?
BA-DUMP
YEAH...
THESE TWO...
MIGHT JUST BE THE ONES TO CHANGE THIS COUNTRY FROM THE FOUNDATION UP.

Five Years Ago

Kingdom of Elkia, Steph's Mansion.

As the two siblings pored through copious piles of books in her library, Stephanie Dola stared on in wonderment. "You guys came from another world, right?"

"Yeah. What of it?" Sora responded, not taking his eyes off of his book.

"Well, don't you want to go back to your home world?"

Steph asked this question out of concern, imagining how she would feel about suddenly finding herself in a strange world. To Sora and Shiro, Steph's world was entirely new—even the writing needed deciphering! This world offered no place for them to call home, and common sense was scarce and underrated. She was certain that, were she in their position, she would be aching to return home.

However, to Steph's surprise, both siblings responded instantly:

"Never even crossed my mind."

"Nope…"

"May I ask why not?" Steph tried to picture herself in a completely foreign land. She thought of how terrified and lonely she would feel. What horrors had these two witnessed in their former home that would make them so hesitant to return? Steph was taken aback by the siblings' complete lack of lingering attachment to their former world, and she asked timidly, unsure of whether it was really safe to raise the question.

"Hmm…" Sora closed his book with a clap, his gaze somewhere far away. "Our home world isn't nice like it is here."

Shiro remained silent, as she often did.

Sora continued, "We went through some awful times. It was so miserable that it still hurts to think about it. One event in particular will haunt me until the day that I die." He paused. "Anyway, I suppose that's why we've got no love for our home world."

"…What Nii said," Shiro confirmed quietly.

It was a memory that the two siblings shared, and a day they would never forget.

From the look on Sora's face, Steph could tell that this was a bitter and painful memory. "Well, if doesn't bother you, you can talk about it," she urged gently. "We've got time to kill, anyway."

Sorrowfully, Sora cast his eyes downward. Bit by bit, he began to talk about what happened that day.

* * *

Five Years Ago—

Sotokanda, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Japan.

Akihabara, fondly referred to as the Mecca of Geekiness.

In an arcade, just off the overpass over the landmark Central Street, stood a brother and sister who looked as different as night and day. One was a middle-school-aged boy with black hair and a fiendish look in his black eyes. The other was a young girl with white hair and red eyes, clearly still in elementary school. For the last two hours, these two had remained glued in place in front of the arcade's crane game cabinet.

To win the crane game, a player must use simple controls to position a small crane directly above the prize he seeks. Many believe that there is no further depth to the game, but these two young siblings knew better. They knew, in truth, that the crane game is a fighting game.

It is a battle between the customer and the store, and allowance money and store profits are the resources each side brings to the fight. With its steep difficulty and tangible rewards at stake, it is the single most serious, hardcore game at the arcade. If the customers go home empty-handed, they may never return. But if the highly-coveted prizes were easy to win, the arcade would lose money. Therefore, the store clerk must use every measure at his disposal—from simple adjustments to the angle of the crane's claw or the strength of the spring, all the way to more advanced considerations, such as ensuring that it takes a higher number of tries (and consequently more money) to move desirable prizes into catching range—all the while keeping in mind how much money the customer is willing to spend beyond the original cost of the prize. The store clerk uses all of the knowledge and know-how he's cultivated over the years to produce this challenge.

On the other hand, for the player, it is a challenge of the highest degree to determine if he can see through the store's schemes, thwart the multitude of traps, and coax out the prize in the fewest possible number of turns.

All the same, many believe that the store clerk will give them the prize after enough tries if they only ask.

What a charming, heart-warming thought. Think back again on this story, and see the folly of this thinking. The arcade wants the customer to continue playing, even after investing past the actual value of the prize. Indeed, the true identity of the crane game is a shameless farce—a seemingly innocent and earnest game that turns a profit after absorbing the price of the treasures inside. Behind the scenes, it's nothing more than money-grubbing capitalists out to create a zombie-like horde of repeat customers!

And yet…

"Nii…done," spoke the young girl. Dozens of plush toys lay scattered around her feet. Shiro stood before a totally empty crane game cabinet.

At the tender age of six, Shiro commanded a pinpoint accuracy that let her weave between the threads and seams of the plush toys, hooking multiple prizes every time. With three tries costing 500 yen per set, she had spent a scant 2000 yen and twelve turns to extract every prize in the cabinet. The arcade had lost a substantial amount. But the issue at hand was something else entirely…

"Then would you mind helping me out, here? This one's pretty tough," young Sora called, wiping the sweat from his brow. Sora had already emptied a second crane cabinet of its contents, and with his own mountain of prizes piled near his feet, he had started on a third machine. However, he had already lost five coins to this cabinet, leaving him shaking in his boots.

"Nii struggling…? Weird…"

"Yeah, every time I think I'm getting close, I wind up missing. This store clerk knows what he's doing!" Sora muttered, gritting his teeth.

The store clerk responsible for the machine and its prizes observed them from the shadows, pleased that his tactics were working against his adversary.

Sora was after a limited edition figure from a popular anime. With its rarity, it was a prize that would sell for double—no—ten times its original price on the secondhand market. Truly, it was intended as bait to attract customers. It wouldn't be at all surprising for a treasure like this to be physically impossible to obtain.

Sora shifted his gaze. Just as the store clerk had noticed Sora, so too had Sora noticed the store clerk. The clerk flashed a triumphant glare at Sora, his face showing no concern. The clerk's eyes were not those of a man who would resort to cheap tricks, such as making the prize physically impossible to win. They were the eyes of a gambler…the eyes of a man full of confidence, experience, and pride. The eyes of this clerk spoke without words: "Catch it if you can."

"That's just the way I wanted it," Sora's eyes retorted sharply. "That means there's a weak point somewhere!"

Shiro crunched numbers like a madwoman, taking the cabinet's unique characteristics into consideration. Sora ran vigorous strategies through his head based on the prize's position. At a glance, it would seem that there was no opening to be found. With ten or twenty turns, one could create an opening, but then the investment would exceed the cost of the prize.

In other words, this was a battle against the clerk.

"I don't necessarily need to catch the prize…I just need it to fall through the chute and into the hatch… If only…" muttered Sora, biting his nails as he tried to figure out just how to execute this plan. If only…

"Nii! Try…there?" Detecting something from Sora's murmurs, Shiro ran complex calculations in her head and pointed her finger. In the area that she pointed, a plan came into focus in Sora's mind.

"Ah! Just leave it to me." With these words, Sora inserted a sixth coin into the machine. He had spent 3000 yen so far, which seemed like a small fortune to a child. With the insertion of the 500 yen coin, the cabinet made a clink as it gobbled up the money. Music began to play, and the machine came alive.

Sora controlled the vertical axis while Shiro was in charge of horizontal, with each sibling's finger placed on top of his respective button. Without any signal or either starting first, the two naturally moved as one gamer, as『　』.

The store clerk's confident expression remained undisturbed, but there was no hesitation in the siblings' movements. Sora stopped the crane with laser precision as it headed inward to a spot notably further in than the prize he sought.

"Heh." The store clerk unconsciously let out a sarcastic snicker at Sora's mishandling.

But still, Shiro continued on moving the crane right until it very precisely clutched a box much lighter than the prize they were after. It was clear that it had been calculated to land directly in front of the prize chute, almost as if it were a bridge.

"Wha…?!" A gasp of surprised horror escaped the lips of the stunned clerk. Now it was the siblings' turn to smirk.

"Hehehe. Sorry, guy. The owner's gonna chew you out."

"『　』…cannot be defeated," affirmed the two young siblings in unison.

The clerk made a fiendish growl, which didn't seem to match his appearance at all.

The inside of the arcade buzzed with the chirps and bleeps of the games. A fierce but silent battle waged indirectly between the trio. Then came the ringing sound that heralded the end of the conflict: the sound of the cabinet eating Sora's seventh coin. Sora and Shiro smoothly worked their hands without a moment's hesitation. The crane grazed the box of the figure they desired. And that was that. The box fell over and slid down the bridge they had built…

"Sorry, guy."

"You were a good foe…"

The prize headed straight for the chute. At the sight of this spectacle, the siblings thrust their fists to the sky, a gesture of victory for the customer and a sign of loss for the arcade. Meanwhile, their opponent against whom they had used all their might had a smile on his face as he hung up the phone.

“What the heck are you two doing here?! Why aren’t you sweeties at school?!”

“Uh…”

“Eek…!”

It was a weekday morning. The two truant minors, riddled with social phobias, had come this early to avoid dealing with a crowd. Upon hearing the question, the pair jumped and bolted, leaving behind on the arcade floor the numerous prizes that they couldn’t hope to carry.

In his sad state of flight, Sora turned back and yelled, “You bastard! Where’s your pride?!”

But the clerk who had called for the truancy officer simply responded with a silent, twisted smile and a happy sigh, revealing to Sora that the man was a true gambler. True gamblers do whatever it takes to win.

“Sorry, kid. That’s life for you. Winning’s all that matters.” The clerk had managed to avoid being docked any pay and, heaving a deep sigh of relief, he began to pick up the prizes spread all over the ground.

“……”

This is the story of a young Sora and Shiro—the siblings who would later become an urban legend—the two who would be summoned by God to Disboard, a world where everything is determined by games.

The siblings who would one day rise to the stuff of myths. Imanity's strongest gamer, 『　』—and the one game they didn't win.

"Nii… Shiro's plushies…"

"God dammit! How long is that old hag going to chase us?! Oh, don't worry about the toys. I'm gonna do whatever it takes to get them back…"

"Wait up, sweeties! Don't run from me, hun!" As the grating voice of the officer loomed ever closer, Sora consoled his weeping sister and, clicking his tongue with a magnificent tick, yelled, "DAMMIT! GROWN-UPS ARE CROOKED!!!"

The one game they didn't win. That was the day they learned of the game called "life."

◆

The end of Sora's story was met with utter stillness.

The two siblings broke the silence. Sora took a deep breath. "…Well, now you can see why we feel that way."

"Shiro hurt. Deeply hurt…" Shiro added.

Steph responded with a narrowed, steely gaze. "I didn't understand even half of your story, but what I did get is that it's an astonishingly stupid reason."

As if he hadn't heard her retort at all, Sora opened his book anew and resumed reading, his chin resting on his hands.

"Well, we did go back on a later date and took every last one of the arcade's prizes," Sora muttered. Shiro nodded in agreement.

"They removed that crane game cabinet after we pillaged their prizes every day for a week. I wonder if that arcade's still around…"

"Revenge… gotten." Upon saying this, a fiendish smile erupted across the siblings' faces.

Dejected, Steph gave voice to her feelings. "Don't you think you two are the ones who are vicious?"

Steph decided that for the time being, she didn't want to get on their bad side.

NO GAME NO LIFE AFTERWORD

Mashiro Hiiragi & Yuu Kamiya

I'm Mashiro Hiiragi, in charge of the manga version. This is a joint project, so depending on who's assigned to what, it might seem disjointed...

We're able to make this manga thanks to the spurts Kamiya works within, but perhaps you'll enjoy seeing where Kamiya's spurts end and I take over in each chapter. However, I don't know if that's really all that appealing! Putting aside those details, I'm so glad we were able to finish volume one without a hitch! I really hope you enjoy it.

Also, there's going to be an anime version, and we're really looking forward to it! Go us!

Lastly, I really love the self-styled God. I hope to see more of him.

MASHIRO HIIRAGI

YUU KAMIYA

Hello, sorry to interrupt here in the manga, too. I'm Yuu Kamiya.

The idea was proposed to us as if we were asked to pick up an extra pack of gum on the way back from the store: "Since you already write the story and draw the art for No Game No Life, how about you make a manga version, too?" Thus began this totally reckless foray into the manga world between husband and wife.

Now that we've gained some popularity, I've begun to worry about releasing both the light novels and manga simultaneously. We work at such a murderous pace to finish everything in time!

I'd taken a break from working as a manga artist due to health problems, so I told them that there would be several conditions if I were to accept this project. In any case, life just can't be too easy, can it? T.T

Perhaps it'll be fun for you try and figure out which of us is in charge of what with the particular differences in our art styles, panel placement, and composition habits. But first and foremost, I hope you enjoy the work itself...
